'Mr. Zip' Has Your Number In Marin County

BY RANDALL GOULD

"Mr. Zip" arrives in Marin County Monday.

In fact, like Santa Claus, he'll be all over the map simultaneously — the U.S. postal service map, anyhow.

It's you and you, and you, who invited him, according to Postmaster General J. Edward Day. His full name is Zoning Improvement Plan.

Day says the new five-digit numbers covering every postal address in the country, with a few extra complications, are a direct result of the docile way the public has accepted the two-digit zone system used in more than 100 large cities for more than 20 years.

Marin County, however, has not had such numbers because it lacks large cities. Marinite use of the zone numbers has been confined to outgoing mail headed for the big population centers.

Under the new "Zip" system there are numbers even for Fallon, Marshall, Lagunitas and similar secluded areas, while such relative metropoli as San Rafael and Mill Valley have more than one.

That is to differentiate between handling through postal boxes or by carriers, as well as to look after such situations as Civic Center mail going to the post office at the center through San Rafael.

Mill Valley not only has separate numbers for carriers and boxes, but one actually applying to most carriers and termed "carrier annex" because the deliverymen have been squeezed out of the main building.

Whatever your number may be, it will be conveyed to you soon by a special card. You're supposed to include it in return addresses of outgoing mail so your correspondents can adopt it.

The first three digits for Marin County will all be "949", followed by two more digits applying to the specific post office and its division.

Meaning of the initial "9" is that the mail is for the West Coast. The "4" means San Francisco Postal Center Services Area. The other "9" is for the sectional center, in this case San Rafael but applying as far up as Cotati in Sonoma County as well as Bodega Bay on the seacoast.

The final two digits seem generally to follow alphabetical sequence but with some

Cause Of Fire At Supermarket Undeterimed

Chief Asks Investigator To Probe Ruins

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Cause of the $450,000 fire which destroyed the Jolly Stores in Mill Valley early yesterday and also struck four other business establishments plus the H. E. Rich apartment remained undetermined today.

Fire Chief Leslie Armager said today he has asked for a National Board of Fire Underwriters special investigator to examine the ruins.

Firemen are standing by at the store over the weekend "in case any hot spots break out," Armager said. The store, which was gutted but for its concrete walls, has been boarded up.

Herbert Shapiro, owner of the complex of buildings including the supermarket, the temporary quarters of Marin Electric and Hardware and Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet — all hit by the fire — has announced he will rebuild.

Savings Firms Plan To Hold Interest Rate

Directors of two Marin County savings and loan firms decided yesterday to hold their interest rate on savings at 4.8 per cent despite a downward trend.

Novato Savings and Loan Assn. and Ross Valley Savings and Loan Assn. will keep the 4.8 per cent rate through the third quarter.

It was the Ross Valley institution which first went up to the 4.8 level last July, the other six Marin County savings and loans firms promptly following suit.

When Northwestern Savings and Loan and Marin County Savings and Loan announced Tuesday that they were going down to 4.5 per cent it started a trend followed by most of the others. But Ross Valley had from the outset considered a possibility to develop a "split rate" situation in Marin.

Dr. Earl M. Young, president of Ross Valley Savings and Loan, said after a prolonged lunch session of directors that justification for staying at the high rate had been found by "thorough study of our operations over the past year."

He added that "our increased savings, our expanded loan portfolio and our high earned reserve justify paying the higher dividend to our savers."

Russ Demand Recall Of 3 Chinese Aides

Peking May Boycott Talks On Ideology

MOSCOW (AP) — Red China disclosed today the Soviet Union has demanded the recall of three members of the Chinese embassy in Moscow, a step without precedent in the relations between the two feuding powers.

Western diplomats said the Soviet action may prompt the Chinese to boycott the Soviet-Chinese ideological talks due to open in Moscow July 5.

"The Chinese could have kept the matter quiet," one Western diplomat commented. "It's beginning to look as if they don't really want to come here next month."

The news of the Soviet action was distributed by Peking's New China news agency. The foreign ministry refused to comment.

The agency's account said the Chinese foreign ministry called the Soviet move "unreasonable and its excuse untenable."

The Chinese indicated they would heed the Soviet demand and would not retaliate by ousting Soviet diplomats in China.

The Soviet demand was made in a note to the Chinese embassy in Moscow on Thursday.

The Chinese said the Russians demanded the recall of three members of the embassy staff and two other Chinese in the Soviet Union for disturbing the Chinese Communist party's letter of June 14 assailing the party leadership of Premier Khrushchev.

The 30,000-word letter attacked the Kremlin's cold war policy of peaceful coexistence. The Kremlin, in an unprecedented move, publicly announced later it would not publish the letter.

The Red Chinese said the Peking letter was in reply to a letter of the Soviet Communist party Central Committee on March 30. A Chinese foreign

Larkspur Protest Modified

By FRANK FARRARA

An irate group of taxpayers, cautioned not to act emotionally, chose the moderate approach last night in their protest against the Larkspur School District board.

Nettled because the board granted pay raises after the voters turned down a tax rate increase, the taxpayers jammed the kindergarten room at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School ready for action.

After the harsh words were spoken, 97 taxpayers signed a petition asking the board to discuss its actions.

This was a modification of the original draft of the petition which called for the board to reconsider the pay raises. (See also story on page 2.)

About 120 persons including teachers and three school board members attended the session where both the board and the citizens were criticized for lack of communication.

There was applause for speakers representing both sides, and in a surprise ending, the taxpayers gave the school board a round of applause.

School trustee Curtis P. Kamai, speaking as an individual, said "I would like to see a citizen-type committee work with the board."

He urged residents to find out what the school board is doing. "Don't wait until they

Retarded Boy, 11, Missing In Marin

WAYNE FROST
Missing from Ross home

An 11-year-old mentally retarded boy, unable to speak but able to climb to the top of a redwood tree "without fear," has been missing from his special school in Ross since 3 p.m. yesterday.

Wayne Frost, a crew-cut, brown eyed patient at the Cedar Development School, Bolinas Avenue and Upper Road, climbed the fence of the school patio during momentary absence of his house mother.

"He loves to climb trees and go swimming" reports his worried mother, Mrs. Alfred G. Frost of Redwood City. She said he was wearing faded blue jeans, a blue T-shirt and black tennis shoes.

Volunteer searchers are combing the area of Ross under direction of the Ross police department.

This is not the first time Wayne has run away. The boy was found wading in a swimming pool at 196 Oak Avenue, Ross, last Wednesday about noon and returned to the Cedar School.

Persons with any information of the missing boy are asked to call Mrs. Frost at the Cedar Development school or the Ross Police Department.

Unity Plea Ends Young GOP Session

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A plea for unity has closed the Young Republican National Convention, marked by bitter discord over election of officers.

Veteran observers called the 13th biennial meeting which ended early today one of the rowdiest ever staged. During the more than four days, the Young Republicans heard senior party members counsel harmony while they were engaged in heated arguments.

The climax came Friday afternoon when after two hours and 45 minutes of uproar, Donald Lukens, 32, of Washington, D.C., was elected chairman of the Young Republican National Federation for the next two years. The Goldwater Republican is minority clerk for the U.S. House of Representatives Rules Committee.

Lukens narrowly beat the President Visits Grave Of Sister

CHATSWORTH, England (AP) —President John F. Kennedy flew in from Ireland this afternoon for a private visit to the grave of his sister, Kathleen, killed in a plane crash in France in 1948.

In a last-minute change, Kennedy's plane was diverted from Gatwick airport, south of London, to a Royal Air Force base near this small Midlands community for an hour's stopover.

From here, the president will proceed to Gatwick for his meeting with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan tonight and tomorrow, at Macmillan's country home, Birch Grove, 35 miles south of London.

Kennedy's sister was killed in a plane crash in southern France May 14, 1948, while on her way to the French Riviera.

She was buried six days later in the church yard of St.

Art Schallock Scores Ace At Meadow Club

Art Schallock, former pitcher for the New York Yankees, was in good company yesterday when he scored a hole-in-one at the Meadow Club, his first ace since playing golf for more than 20 years.

Schallock's ace on the 202-yard 14th hole was witnessed by San Rafael city councilman Louis H. (Bud) Baar, San Rafael City Atty. David Menary Jr., and Paul Leahy, manager of Title Insurance and Trust Co. of San Rafael. Schallock used a four iron to record the feat.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Bean Murder Trial Recessed

RENO (AP) — The Thomas Lee Bean murder trial is recessed until Monday when Dist. Atty. William J. Raggio will continue presenting the state's case.

Bean, 18, faces an open murder charge in the brutal slaying and mutilation April 5 of Sonja McCaskie, 24-year-old former Olympic skier for Great Britain.

Capt. Dallas Seevers, head of the Reno police identification bureau, told the District Court jury yesterday that a bloody footprint found in Miss McCaskie's apartment matched Bean's footprint.

Raggio said he would prove Bean guilty of first degree murder, which carries the possibility of a death penalty in Nevada.

Key testimony is expected next week from psychiatrists who examined Bean.

NAACP Traces Rights Action

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People today traced last year's groundswell of Negro resentment to the slow pace of school desegregation, continued resistance to full civil rights for Negroes, and the Kennedy administration's "apparent reluctance" to seek congressional enactment of strong civil rights.

The NAACP's annual report released here on the eve of the 54th NAACP convention in Chicago, said that as the 1963 centennial of the Emancipation Proclamation neared "Negroes throughout the country grew increasingly restive and resentful of the century-long delay in the fulfillment of the promises of Lincoln's historic document."

Kills Wife, Children

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Police said that a Denver man planned to wipe out his family of 11 early today but stopped after killing his wife and three young children.

They identified him as Luis J. Monge, 45, driver for a mercantile firm.

Investigators said Monge went on a rampage after brooding over personal problems.

The dead were Monge's wife, Leonarda 43; and children, Allan, 6; Vinceint 4, and Tresa, 11 months.

Police said Monge first beat his wife to death with an iron bar, then stabbed the baby Tresa with a stiletto, choken Vincent to death and beat Allan to death in the basement with a bar.

Monge then became unnerved, officers said, and called the police.

Seven other children sleeping in another section of the home did not awaken until the police arrived. Their ages ranged up to 18.

Dairy Referendum

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Department of Agriculture will mail referendum ballots to 4,100 milk producers and handlers to determine whether to increase assessments for the California Dairy Council's promotion and education programs.

Director Charles Paul said the ballots would be mailed Monday. Deadline for returning them is Aug. 15.

Gets Gas Chamber

SAN JOSE (AP) — Gas chamber execution was decreed by a judge today for cab driver Robert Anderson, 34, who hacked his stepdaughter to death with a hunting knife Dec. 7.

Superior Court Judge Peter Anello ordered Anderson taken to San Quentin's Death Row within 10 days. No execution date was set pending the automatic appeal to the State Supreme Court.

The jury which convicted him of murdering Victoria Hammond deadlocked on the penalty. A second jury voted for death on the fourth ballot.

Testimony brought that Anderson had sex relations with the girl, daughter of his common law wife.

Suspect Is Booked

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — Joe Elmer Davis, 25, an unemployed bartender and former dance instructor was booked yesterday for investigation in the death of a former student, divorcee Rosa Fudel, 54.

Furniture and other items taken from Mrs. Fudel's home in an April burglary were recovered in Davis' Redwood City apartment yesterday, said Asst. Police Chief Robert Schatz.

Mrs. Fudel was shot to death in her bed Wednesday. The death weapon has not been found.

Davis once taught at a Palo Alto ballroom dancing studio where Mrs. Fudel was a student, police said.

'Oklahoma GOP'

VALLEJO (AP) — Oklahoma's first Republican governor said last night "the Republican Party can count Oklahoma safely in the fold" in the 1964 presidential election.

Gov. Henry Bellman told the Solano County Republican Central Committee that California would also go Republican if the state's party members were willing to "work together."

"The Republican Party can no longer afford the luxury of disunity," he said.

Actress Is Sued

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Anita Ekberg is being sued for $26,500 by a publicist-business manager who says she owes him the money for delinquent fees.

Paul Ross charged in his Superior Court suit yesterday that he worked for the buxom actress from April 11, 1960, to April 11, 1962, and was paid only $3,000 of his $29,500 fee.

Fair Bodega Head Hearing Is Promised

Assurance has been asked from the chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission that "all groups and individuals" will be permitted to testify at commission hearings in Santa Rosa soon on the proposed Bodega Head nuclear power plant.

Rep. Donald H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) made the request in a letter which said that such procedure in his opinion would be "the only acceptable method by which to arrive at an enlightened decision based on all the facts."

Clausen said his talks with officials of the commission and the U.S. Geological Survey indicate that the hearings will be held "probably in late August or September" to determine whether the AEC should grant a permit for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to construct the plant.

AEC officials said announcement of the hearings would be made after receipt of a Geological Survey report regarding earthquake faults.

The San Andreas fault in the immediate vicinity of the proposed location, continuing down through Tomales Bay and the Marin County coast, is chief concern in this connection.

When the report is completed the AEC is required to give 30-days notice to the public in setting dates of the hearings.

Clausen said he has received scores of letters from constituents who are convinced that construction of such a plant is either dangerous or unnecessary.

Housewife Who Fell Off Horse Suing: $50,000

A San Francisco housewife, who fell off a horse and was dragged for some distance at Meadow Club Stables last January, is suing for $50,000 damages.

Mrs. Ulla Delourme of 2201 Sacramento Street filed the suit yesterday in Marin Superior Court against Meadow Hunt and Trail Club and several John Does.

On Jan. 8, Mrs. Delourme said she asked for a quiet horse because she is inexperienced, and was given a horse named "Dan" or "Don." The man in charge told her it was a quiet horse, but Dan turned out to be dangerous, Mrs. Delourme alleges.

It began to gallop, and she became entangled in the reins when she tried to dismount, Mrs. Delourme says. She seeks damages for severe injuries including a concussion.

Bicycle Riders Warned By CHP

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The traditional upsurge in bicycle usage brought a reminder for youngsters from California Highway Patrol Commissioner Bradford M. Crittendon recently.

"Remember that a bicycle is a vehicle, and is subject to applicable vehicle laws. Bicycle riders must use the proper hand signals when turning, they must obey all traffic control signs and signals, and they must ride on the right-hand side of the road.

"For night-time riding, bikes must be equipped with a white light in the front, visible at least 300 feet, and a red reflector or red light on the rear, also visible 330 feet."

Car Kills Pony

A brown and white pony was killed today at 2:30 a.m. when a car driven by Bronce A. Chadin, 25, of 22 Adrain Road, Santa Venetia, struck the horse on San Pedro Road, just east of Merian Drive. The owner of the pony was not known.

Larkspur School Pay Once Highest In Bay Area

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

When the salary scale of Larkspur School District teachers was set in 1958 with a starting minimum of $4,500 and a maximum of $9,000 per year, it was hailed as the highest for any elementary school district in the Bay Area.

Five years later, $200 was added to the scale, and the raise helped touch off a taxpayers' revolt.

Meantime, pay scales in other districts had been creeping up (sometimes at a pretty fast creep, too). Larkspur's was no longer the highest in the Bay Area. Far from it!

For instance: In San Rafael, which had a starting minimum equal to Larkspur's in 1958 but a much lower maximum, the scale for next school year is $5,100 to $10,050.

Dixie District's scale for next school year is $5,000 to $9,750; Novato's, $4,740 to $9,288; Reed's $5,610 to $10,305; San Jose's, $5,200 to $9,880.

The $200 raise for the teachers was coupled in Larkspur with a $2,000 raise for the superintendent. The latter, more than the former, stirred citizens who had worked without success for an 85-cent tax rate increase on the basis that salaries could not be hiked without it.

San Rafael, Dixie, Novato, Reed, and San Jose districts also have raised superintendents' pay recently.

Teachers' salaries are based on complicated schedules, with various numbers of regular annual "step" increments, so the top and bottom figures on the scale are not always significant.

The average actual salary paid is of more importance, at least to the taxpayer.

According to Mrs. Pauline Secor, chairman of the Larkspur School District board, the average teacher salary in the district for the school year just closed was $6,800. This was the average for teachers — not counting salaries of administrators.

During the same school year, average pay of teachers in Reed District was $7,925; in San Rafael elementary schools, $7,520; in San Rafael high schools, $7,240; in Novato High School, $7,274; in Novato elementary schools, $6,760; in Dixie District schools, $6,800, and in San Jose District, $6,607.

Thus, of this group, only Novato elementary and San Jose teachers were below the average of what was five years ago "the highest paid elementary school district in the Bay Area" in Larkspur.

Sausalito Bridgeway Inn Under Fire From Alcohol Control Board

Sausalito's Bridgeway Inn, 621 Bridgeway, is a place where men talk in high voices and women talk in low, gruff voices, according to testimony by special investigators for the California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control.

The department, seeking for the second time to revoke, the Bridgeway Inn liquor license, has filed nine charges of permitting homosexual conduct on the premises. Hearings on the charges were conducted but not concluded this week at the San Rafael Labor Temple.

"I think it's the biggest case we've had in Marin," Jerome C. Utz, assistant counsel from the ABC's San Francisco office, said yesterday.

He has called special investigators to the witness stand to testify about acts they observed in the Bridgeway Inn.

Attorney Richard Gladstein of San Francisco, representing Bridgeway Inn owner Glenn F. Hill, has called employees to the stand to deny or say they failed to see such acts.

Special investigator C. R. Lampe said he was solicited June 16, 1962, in the Bridgeway by a William Williams.

Special Investigator Edward Ichioka said he had to keep one hand low to repel the advances of a Garth Pierce, a patron in the Bridgeway Inn on the night of Aug. 23, 1962.

On the nights of Aug. 25 and 31, 1962, the investigators reported seeing females carress and fondle each other in the premises. The investigators said there were about 50 men in the establishment with homosexual characteristics, such as high voices, hip-swinging walks and other feminine traits.

Some of the women, wearing slacks, talked in low gruff voices and appeared to be lesbians, the investigators said.

Defense witnesses called to the stand included bartender Robert Drohan and doorman James Scott. They testified that they observed none of the events alleged and that there are often as many as 350 persons in the establishment on a busy weekend, making it difficult to see such things.

Utz explained yesterday that the law does not prevent a homosexual from going into a licensed establishment, but knowingly permitting homosexuals to make advances comes under a code section forbidding lewd conduct.

Utz is recommending that the license held by Hill be revoked. Revocation was ordered after hearing testimony on similar charges against the Bridgeway Inn almost a year ago, but this order was appealed and the case is pending before the ABC department's appeal board. Bridgeway Inn is still open.

Hearing Officer Lloyd James continued the hearing yesterday to an indefinite date after Gladstein, delayed by another court case in Santa Cruz County, failed to appear.

There has been testimony for seven days in the case, involving either all or part of the day. It will take at least another full afternoon to complete the hearing, James said.

$300,000 Suit Filed In Death

A $300,000 damage suit was filed in Marin Superior Court yesterday for the death of a Black Point carpenter foreman, who was buried by a cave-in at Nicasio Pump Station almost two years ago.

Dee Henry Bradshaw, 42, died in the trench cave-in on Sept. 18, 1961. Thomas E. Burchfield, 26, San Rafael laborer, also died in the same tragedy.

Mrs. Clara Bradshaw filed the suit against Pacific Mechanical Corp. of Contra Costa, general contractor; Holtzinger Bros., a subcontractor; and several John Does. Bradshaw was working for subcontractor Don Presco at the time.

Bradshaw left his widow and four children, aged 11 to 16.

The damage suit was originally filed in Contra Costa County in March last year but it was transferred to Marin because most of the witnesses are living here.

ENGINEERS GET DREDGING PLAN

Dredging beside Harbor Island, which lies along the east side of the Strawberry Peninsula, and deposit of fill behind levees on the island, is proposed in an application by Associated Contractors of Palo Alto for an Army Engineer permit.

Eventual construction of single-story dwellings on the island will be allowed under terms of permits obtained some months ago from the Marin County Planning Commission.

The dredging is to make a channel 60 feet long and 90 feet wide to a depth of six feet below mean lower low water. It would connect two existing channels of which a northern area has already been dredged by Associated Contractors and the other extends southward along the east coast of Harbor Island. It was dredged under permit to the late Samuel R. Neider.

All these channels lie within the area of the Salt Works Canal.

It is proposed to remove about 18,000 cubic yards which will be used to raise the level of the island.

Any objections on navigational grounds should be sent in triplicate to the Corps of Engineers office at 180 New Montgomery Street, San Francisco, no later than July 17.

Another application to the engineers relates to proposed construction of a pier on the east side of Tomales Bay about a mile south of Marconi.

Benson Eschenbach of Point Richmond wishes to build an L-shaped structure extending about 80 feet from shore and 32 feet wide at the bayward end. It is to be reinforced concrete cribwork construction, each crib to be filled with rock, in effect forming a breakwater.

Objections on navigational grounds should be filed by July 28.

Ft. Cronkhite Park Approval Expected

Approval of the state's application for acquisition of about 50 acres of Fort Cronkhite as a park is expected in two or three months, Assemblyman William T. Bagley (R-San Rafael) announced today.

Bagley said that State Division of Beaches and Parks personnel had informed him they would make formal application to the General Services Administration for the property "in a few days."

Bagley said he "anticipates no difficulty" in obtaining the property because he had been informed that funds were available for its purchase.

The initial use of the property, Bagley said, would be for day use of the beach. As more property is acquired, camping facilities will be installed.

The state has been planning to make the "Golden Gate Headlands" park project out of property acquired in this area.

gaps, perhaps to allow new offices to be filled in. San Geronimo has 94963, the "64" is San Quentin and the "65" Sausalito, but Stinson Beach is next alphabetically and it has a five-digit advance to 94970.

Marin County postmasters seem agreed that all categories of mail users will profit if there is general cooperation to use the new code.

"Anybody in the county should have faster handling of mail bound his way," said San Rafael Postmaster Warren H. Williams.

Postmaster John Little of Mill Valley said his office can shortcut several handlings through use of the code. Sometimes "about six operations" are necessary at present whereas the code will allow instant routing toward box or carrier, and generally smooth things out, according to Little.

Though the scheme breaks the whole country down into a pattern of service areas, the postoffice by no means intends to refuse mail without code numbers.

For a while it was thought that Zip would apply only to large volume mailers with special equipment, but, "as the plan was developed we raised our sights and aimed for the use of Zip in return addresses by the general public," Postmaster General Day reported.

more moderate Idaho legislator and lawyer, Charles McDevitt, 31, who after the first ballot was two votes shy of getting the needed 313 votes to win. Several hours later, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania cautioned delegates not "to beat each other to bits." He said this "is a sure way to let our opposition beat us once more at the polls."

The decisive vote for chairman was controlled by California Chairman Robert Gaston of La Canada. The first ballot ended with 311 votes for McDevitt, 264 for Lukens and 49 for Gaston.

On the second, Gaston threw his states's 40 votes to Lukens. Seven of the nine others who had voted for him followed suit, and the final vote electing Lukens up 318 to 305 with one abstention.

Earlier in the week, Lukens had said that he was not committed to any GOP presidential candidate. He later endorsed Arizona Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, clearly the favorite of a majority of delegates.

The California delegation then endorsed Lukens, but after changing his mind several times, Gaston decided to run, saying neither Lukens nor McDevitt was conservative enough.

Disorder on the floor during voting became so great that the National Anthem was played to calm things down, and two San Francisco policemen were brought in to join private guards.

Peter's Church in Edensor near Chatsworth, 150 miles northwest of London.

She married the Marquis of Hartington, son of the Duke of Devonshire, in May, 1944. The marquis was killed in war action in France only four months later.

Kennedy's helicopter landed in a field beside the tiny Edensor Church. The president walked from the helicopter to the churchyard, carrying a small wreath.

Kathleen Kennedy was one of nine Kennedy children.

She was 28 when she died. She had been introduced to the marquis by Queen Elizabeth—then Princess Elizabeth—whose close friend she became. Kathleen and the marquis were married in the Chelsea register office, in London.

Kathleen's death completed a trilogy of tragedy. After her husband's death, her brother, U.S. Navy Lt. Joseph Kennedy, who was witness at her wedding, was killed in an operational flight.

do something you don't like," he said.

Specifically, the petitioners "seriously question" the granting of a $2,000 raise to District Supt. Milton S. Cohen, a $200 across the board pay raise for teachers and salary increases to classified employees.

"We are convinced that the board of education in this instance will have lost the confidence of many of its most ardent supporters," the petition states.

"This is because the voters on June 4 defeated a proposed tax increase, one of the purposes of which was to provide higher salaries for teachers and employees."

Granting raises while deleting the foreign language program, psychological testing and guidance, transportation and school repairs "will seriously jeopardize any chance of passing a future bond issue or tax increase," the petition states.

"We are sincere in our belief that the long term effect of their action will be more harmful than beneficial."

The protesting taxpayers group was criticized by J. W. McClintock of Corte Madera who charged them with "one of the most irresponsible acts I have ever witnessed."

He said the issue should have been "hashed out between the board and the citizens and not on the front page of the Independent-Journal and on the local radio station."

Albert P. Clark of 66 Elm Avenue, Larkspur, a spokesman for the group, replied, "We didn't intend that it be fought on the pages of the Independent-Journal, but they love to get stuff like this."

Edward E. Tanner of Corte Madera said "When people who object to a government body can't meet and discuss it, then we better all go home and forget it."

The strongest attacks against the school board came early in the meeting, starting with Robert V. Schneider of Corte Madera who said he would be willing to put up $10 to help pay for a recall suit.

"I think the action of the board showed they don't really care about children primarily," said Eleanor Kapousouz of Larkspur. "If Mr. Cohen had really cared about children, he would not have accepted the raise."

Jennings Smith of Corte Madera said he felt there was a lack of long range planning.

After Vaughn Marker of Larkspur urged the group "not to get emotional about this," the tenor of the comments was modified. "The most important thing is that the board understand the sentiment of the group. There has been a lack of communication both ways; board to the people and the people to the board."

Donald E. Fox of Larkspur, moderator, said the group had hoped to meet with the board last night, but Mrs. Pauline Secor, board chairman, did not call a board meeting.

Mrs. Secor, who was standing at the rear of the room for part of the meeting, did not speak. The other trustees attending were Kamai and Jack L. Mengel who voted against the $2,000 raise for Cohen.

The petition will be presented to the school board at its organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Corte Madera-Larkspur School.

The board also will consider appointing a community tax and bond committee.

Europe to their television sets for the live transmission.

It will begin with a long procession of cardinals, priests, Swiss guards and the Pope himself across the great same square that has so often down through the centuries been the scene of historic events.

Then the Pope will sing a mass, joined by the crowd in perhaps the greatest choir in church history.

Finally, Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, senior cardinal deacon, will place the three-tiered, jewel-encrusted papal crown on the head and intone in latin the ritual words that mean:

"Receive the tiara adorned with three crowns and know that thou art father of Princes and Kings, guide of the world and vicar of Jesus Christ Our Lord to whom be honor and glory without end."

Kentfield School Unit To Seat New Trustees

Two new trustees of the Kentfield School District to be seated at 7:45 p.m. Monday will help decide whether the district or parents should buy musical instruments for students to use in the district's music training program.

The two to be seated when the board meets in the Wolfe Grade School library are Kenneth L. Treganowen of Kentfield, a San Francisco insurance broker, and Lawrence Goldberg of Larkspur, a San Francisco attorney.

They fill the seats of Mrs. Watson Conner, board president, who did not run for reelection in April, and Henry G. Hayes, board member for 10 years, who was defeated.

Supt. Howard G. Harmon said the board is expected to establish a policy on who buys the smaller musical instruments. The district buys the larger ones.

Also on the agenda is final consideration of the preliminary budget of $834,000. Harmon said the budget is up $8,000 from its last scrutiny by the board because he has been able to secure exact costs instead of estimates.

The board will elect officers for the 1963-64 year and will consider bids for transporting students.

FIRE

Goods Co. at 391 Miller Avenue above the market, was damaged by the blaze as were the Jolly Liquors, Jolly Fountain and the apartment of the Rich's, located above the fountain.

"We hope to get back into business as soon as possible," announced Bert Pollock, coowner of Jolly Liquors but he added it takes 31-45 days because of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board regulations.

He said it may be possible to get started in temporary quarters within the market area while the store is being rebuilt.

Asked if any liquor survived the fire, Pollock said "I saw one gallon of sauterne wine standing all by itself." Even the cold box, in which the store kept its beer and soft drinks, had fire leaping out of it yesterday morning.

Armager said no injuries were reported and said he wished to thank firemen from Alto, Tamalpais Valley and Mill Valley plus "all the wonderful assistance" given by other volunteers, including many teenagers.

Firemen were highly commended, too, by Walter McKenzie Brown, manager at Campbell-Bishop.

"I could never give them enough credit," said Brown. "I would like to say thank you to all of the people who helped us. If we hadn't had a lot of assistance from the population in general and tremendous professional help from the fire departments and cooperation from the police department, we would have been wiped out. It was so close," he said.

One 1958 Cadillac convertible was lost and four Chevrolets damaged in the burned-out body shop but the firm was able to move and save 60 new and used cars from the car lot next to the market and empty the showroom of four brand new Chevrolets.

"I was raised in Britain during the war," Brown declared. "And I never saw cooperation or professional skill such as our departments that was any better—even at the height of the London blitz."

Span Directors Call Meeting On State 'Ultimatum'

Golden Gate Bridge directors, concerned about the State Highway Commission's "ultimatum" on widening of the San Francisco approach to the bridge, will have a special committee session Wednesday at 10 a.m.

The highway commission warned San Francisco supervisors this week they must approve construction of a link between the Golden Gate Bridge and the Embarcadero Freeway or the widening project will be dropped from the budget.

At a directors' meeting yesterday, Director Dan London called a special session of the building and operating committee to see what action can be taken by the bridge district.

Trustees Due Programs, School Site

New programs and site acquisition will be discussed by the Tamalpais Union High School District board of trustees when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the district office.

The board will elect officers for the 1963-64 year.

Supt. Chester G. Carlisle will report on goals for 1963-64, including his newest estimates on what areas in the district will first need a new school. Acquisition of new high school sites on the Tiburon Peninsula and in San Geronimo Valley is expected to be completed next year.

Carlisle will also discuss a new remedial reading program beginning at Tamalpais High School this fall. If successful, it will be used at Sir Francis Drake and Redwood High Schools, too.

Also on the agenda is discussion on a summer workshop on teaching less-bright students in the district.

and almost toppled the Conservative government.

First to take the stand was Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies, a pert 18-year-old blonde friend of Christine Keeler. Miss Keeler testified yesterday she had been intimate with Profumo and with a Soviet naval attache. Ward is charged with living off the two girls' earnings.

Mandy began giving her evidence in the first sensational day of the hearings yesterday, involving the names of rich and famous people.

Under cross-examination she repeated that she and Lord Astor had been intimate.

Ward's attorney told her Viscount Astor had made a statement to the police denying her allegations. She perkily replied:

"He would, wouldn't he?"

This brought a laugh from the crowded courtroom.

She also stuck to her claim that she knew actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr. She said their acquaintance involved a screen test and two meetings along with Christine.

The hearing appeared virtually certain of causing as big an uproar as the original disclosures which caused the down fall of former War Minister John Profumo and nearly toppled Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's government.

Replacement For County School Unit?

A recommendation for the replacement of Marin County Board of Education member Walter L. Johnson may be made to the board at its meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the Civic Center.

Johnson, whose trustee area includes Novato and San Jose district schools, resigned because he is moving to Marinwood. A committee of three county board members was appointed to seek a replacement.

Under official policy of the board, names of candidates for the position are kept secret. The replacement committee is expected to make a report on candidates and may make a final recommendation to the board.

The board will also hear a report from Mae Durham, University of California library school professor, who has completed a study of school libraries in Marin.

Appointment of a committee to "review and revise" the board's handbook on administrative policies and procedures will also be considered at the meeting.

"This demand of the Soviet government is unreasonable and its excuse untenable.

"It is normal and unimpeachable for the Chinese embassy and Chinese personnel in the Soviet Union to distribute official documents of the Central Committee of the Communist party of China.

"The Soviet establishments and personnel in China have always been doing the same and no objection has ever been raised by the Chinese government.

"What justification has the Soviet government to lodge a protest with the Chinese embassy in Moscow in this connection?

"What justification has it to demand that the Chinese government recall the five Chinese?"

The Chinese government hopes that the Soviet government "will not take further rash steps detrimental to Sino-Soviet unity and the relations between the two states but to uphold and strengthen the unity between the two countries," the spokesman said.

Rocks Shake Their Nerves

Three suspects, including one tree-climber who went out on a limb to avoid questioning by Marin County Sheriff's deputies, were interrogated today regarding a mysterious barrage of rocks plaguing residents along Drake Avenue in Marin City for the past ten days.

"Constant harrassment," including breaking of windows and shattered nerves resulting from at least one barrage a day was reported to the Marin County Sheriff's office by Mrs. Henry Garrison, 253 Drake Avenue.

"We don't know which direction they're coming from," Mrs. Garrison told the Independent-Journal, "You don't see anybody and you don't hear anything. It's a phantom thing."

Mrs. Garrison said one family "bunched up in the living room because they were scared to sleep in their bedrooms."

The rocks are coming night and day, she said.

Family Day At Lagunitas Club To Be Held On The Fourth

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

The annual family day will be held at Lagunitas Club on the Fourth of July. Mrs. Martin Chase, entertainment chairman, says members and their children will gather around the pool for the water races and the youngsters winning will receive awards. A barbecue luncheon will be served near the pool.

A FAREWELL cocktail party will be given by Mr. and Mrs. James C. Reisinger at their home on the Belvedere Lagoon tonight. It will honor their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. David Ross, who are moving to Sonoma where they bought two acres at Sobre Vista, a part of the old Spreckels ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Ross and their children Charlotte, 13, and David, 7, will make the move July 8. The new place is beautifully wooded.

The Reisingers are giving another party on July 4. Then they will be hosts at a cocktail party and buffet dinner.

THE FRANK BAUMGARTENS have been giving a number of dinner parties at their home Ridgeview Farm, Fairfax. Three have taken place and two are planned for August and two for September. With Mary chairman of the Marin Debutante Ball and Frank busy with his legal practice the couple hopes to take time out for a vacation, although it may be brief.

ONLY TWO DOORS apart are the San Rafael homes of Walter and Jane Baird and Dr. and Mrs. Orville Grimes who live on Grand Avenue. Now their vacation homes on the lakeside of Dollar Point at Tahoe will also be separated by only one place. The Tahoe property, formerly owned by the Dollar family, is on the northwest shore of the lake. Plans for the Baird home are off the drawing boards and construction should start soon. Their daughter, Nora, who is attending summer school at the University of Colorado will be home in time, they hope, to see the start of building.

Doctor and Mrs. Grimes will go to the lake the last two weeks in July to confer with their architect and their contractor. Doctor and Mrs. Grimes have two sons and two daughters. The eldest, Orville Jr. who will be in his senior year at the University of California, has been studying in Europe is now traveling there. He will be in Paris July 14 for the celebration of the Fall of the Bastille and travel along the French Riviera and is then going to the British Isles and will sail from England on a freighter for home. Doctor and Mrs. Grimes also have a daughter, Nancy 15, a San Rafael High School sophomore, another son, Doug, 12, who will enroll at Davidson Schol and Dianne, 9, a pupil at Coleman School.

MRS. CHARLES ROSENBAUM of San Rafael and her two daughters, Leta and Carla, have returned from a week at Timber Cove Inn near Fort Ross. Charles was in the northwest on a combined business and fishing trip. Visiting Mrs. Rosenbaum during her stay at the inn were her sister, Mrs. Harry Ziegler of Greenbrae, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Herzog, who lives on the Sleepy Hollow ranch in Sonoma County,, and the Herzogs' daughter, Susan, a recent graduate of the University of California at Davis.

Carla and Leta who have an apartment in San Francisco, are attending summer school at San Francisco State College. Leta is working for a degree in art and general education.

THERE'LL BE A ROUND of parties before the opening of the Trans-Atlantic yacht race which starts tomorrow from Newport. And in the midst of it all will be Clay Calloway of Sausalito, who'll crew on a friend's boat as his Morning Star was lost in the Caribbean.

New Patterns Available In Fine China

CHICAGO (UPI) — The homemaker buying fine china today can choose from many new patterns designed by internationally known artists, including Italy's Emilio Pucci, better known for his clothing designs.

A design team, known as the Rosenthal Studio Group, was organized by Philip Rosenthal, head of the Bavarian china firm, to combine the best art work of modern times with quality china.

"Anything good has to be pleasing as well," said Rosenthal, who was in Chicago to open one of the Studio Rooms planned for 15 major cities nationwide.

THE DESIGN team includes: Pucci, Finland's Tapio Wirkkala, Denmark's Bjorn Wiinblad, Sweden's Count Sigvard Bernadotte, England's Lucienne Day, Germany's Hans Theo Baumann, France's Raymond Peynet, and Raymond Loewy, George Jensen and Richard Latham, from the United States.

The first design to come out of the studio was shown in New York this spring as Porcelaine Noire—the first all-black china.

DESIGNED BY Wirkkala, the dinner service features white against black and black against white in contemporary shapes. It is used for large matte-finished service plates on which an intricate medallion pattern is just barely visible.

Pucci's designs, introduced here, displayed an uninhibited Italian approach to color.

"His designes are almost audacious," Rosenthal said. "He blends greens and reds in a way that would look awful if done by someone less skilled in combining colors."

ROSENTHAL FEELS the new designs will be so successful that 67 per cent of the firm's entire output has been geared to their production. The remaining output is traditional.

He said he thinks Americans will be willing to pay the price of studio designs, which cost 30 to 40 per cent more than other types.

"The function of china, glass and silverware does not lie in their utility," he said. "The function also covers an aesthetic value and serve as a projection of one's own personality."

Tipping—'It's Outrageous!'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The slow burn of anger against tipping reached the scorch stage when the man of our house parked a quarter atop the refrigerator.

"What," said I, "Is that for?"

"To tip the cleaners when they deliver some things," he said.

"Tip the cleaners!," said I. "For the money we spend with them each month, they should tip us."

HE TOOK THE quarter, slipped out of the kitchen and off with it to the piggybank for our grandson, while I became more outraged.

Pretty soon, muttered the budget keeper (me), this country will have let the practice of tipping get so far out of hand we'll tip the mailman for delivery of that stuff addressed simply "occupant of —", tip bus drivers for stopping at the designated bus stop rather than the middle of the block as so often is their wont, tip the apartment house elevator operator for remembering our floor —he's already getting a sizable tip from us at Christmas.

WE'LL BE TIPPING the maid, I thought, for showing up on schedule once a week in addition to paying her salary, carfare and providing lunch.

I suggest that tipping is an outrageaus practice, getting more so in this country, and completely demoralizing the basic structure on which our nation grew and prospered. Now it seems, the motto is, ask not what the country can do for you, but how much it will tip you for doing something for it.

My husband humorously says, "It's not the principle of the thing which bothers you, it's the money."

Could be. But I wonder, did the pioneers tip when one family enjoying a good harvest shared largesse with another not quite so fortunate? Did one tip another for portage? Did repair of the canvas on the covered wagon mean a tip always for the repair man? Did the blacksmith get a tip as well as pay for shoeing a horse? Did the housewife tip at the drop of a calico bonnet?

ORIGIN OF the tip I haven't investigated, except Webster defines it as a fee or present to the servants. Then there is a plenitude of servitude in this land, spread far beyond a tolerable state. It is evil clinging like the wistaria tree (sorry to compare the ugly with the beautiful), and the something for nothing attitude it now so often represents can be as dangerous as Communism.

As of today (tomorrow, the list will be larger), most of us tip the hairdresser, the mincurist, the maid who tends the beauty shop dressing room; the bartender; the bell boy in the hotel; the restaurant waiter, plus a sizable addition for the headwaiter who still places us right there near the service counter anyway; the doorman every time he whistles for a taxi; the grocery delivery boy when the store is seeking your patronage in this highly competitive business world and still brazenly charges an extra 25 cents for delivery—this not including the delivery boy's take; the liquor store deliveryman; the taxi driver, who in New York and most other cities does not even open the cab door for you for this extra percentage; tip the . . .

Well, I can go on, and on.

THOSE WHO DEFEND tipping say that tips are part of the salary of those being tipped. Unadulterated nonsense, as an excuse. In these times when more people have more money than ever before, why isn't the employer paying that tip in salary commensurate? Why is it the public be damned always with a handout of coin or bill!

Tipping should be outlawed; there should be pride, not simpering servitude in work.

THIS COUNTRY WILL survive on the doers, with the hands and mind busy producing and thinking, not on the takers with the hands always out.

The Clever Details Are Often Result Of That Small Mistake

By EUNICE FARMER

"I am making a sheath dress with an elastic drawstring at the waistline to form a bloused top. Unfortunately, I didn't measure before I cut the buttonholes for the elastic — and they are too low. Is there any way to rectify this mistake?"—Mrs. B.J.M.

Dear Mrs. B.J.M.:

You didn't go into much construction detail, but I've checked several patterns, and find most of them have the casing for the elastic ending several inches on each side of the center front.

If this is like your pattern, make the buttonholes and casing in the exact spot that looks best on you. Make two small, faced tabs and attack them just above the end of the casing at each side. They must be long enough to cover your original buttonholes.

Sew them down at this point, attach a small button at the point of each tab, and run your belt through them and tie at the center front. This might be more attractive than the original pattern. Clever details often are the result of a small mistake here and there, you know the old saying, "necessity is the mother of invention."

"When I make a pleated skirt, the pleats always spread at the hips. Is it possible to make a pleated skirt that will lie smooth at the hips?"—Mrs. S.S.

Dear Mrs. S.S.:

You are not allowing enough fabric at the hip line. When you have completed the pleating, it must lie flat and measure slightly more than your hip measurement. The additional width is held in at the waistline by making the pleats deeper or, in the case of a box-pleated skirt, making darts between each pleat.

The usual amount of fabric needed for a skirt of this type is three times the hip measurement.

"For my granddaughter's play clothes, I use the animal designs from cookie cutters as decorations. Outline them on contrasting fabric, cut them out and applique them to the play clothes. I use my zig-zag attachment and they really turn out well. Bells, hearts, trees, etc., can also be used."

Mrs. Elmer Arthras, St. Charles, Mo., is this week's winner of a tailor trix pressing board with this suggestion.

"How can I sew straight hem tape around the curved edge of a facing at the neckline of dresses? My hem tape will never lie flat."—Mrs. R.M.

Dear Mrs. R. M.:

Wet the hem tape and iron it dry. As you press, stretch the outer edge in a semicircle and ease in the inner edge. Your hem tape will now follow the contour of any curved edge and should lie nice and flat.

Several readers have asked for directions for making roses out of ribbon. The best directions will be awarded a tailor trix pressing board.

Housewife Can Project U.S. Image

The average American housewife can play a big role in creating a wholesome image of America for foreign visitors this summer.

"I have been talking to the people at the United States Travel Service, an agency which was set up by our government to encourage foreign tourists to come to this country and see to it that they have a fine time while here," says writer Charlotte Montgomery.

"Those in charge tell me that when visitors are asked what they would most like to do almost all say, 'Meet some Americans. See the inside of an average home.'

"Last summer, in the first year of this stepped-up plan for American hospitality, many travelers from Europe, Mexico, Australia and South America visited private homes.

"The women guests usually were fascinated by our kitchens; the men commented on the friendly, livable feeling of our homes. ('From the movies,' one said, 'I thought every living room was so big it took five minutes to cross!') Best of all, the foreigners enjoyed meeting Americans and spending an hour or so with them.

If you and some of your friends—members of a club you're in or perhaps a church group—would like to provide that kind of simple, friendly home hospitality, write to the Visitor Services Division, U.S. Travel Service, Department of Commerce, Washington 25, D. C.

THE MAGIC OF SEE-THROUGH

Imagine the room above as one long undivided room, and notice how much more interesting the dining area is when seen through the arches. The see-through arches serve as a means of defining the two areas without dividing the room. An arched divider was used because it is in keeping with the formal air of the furniture. The rich, red damask wall is ideal with the Old World finish of the woods and with the classic accessories. Both it, and the pure white carpeting, flow through both areas to maintain the spsciousness. The white sheer curtains are repeated on the windows in the dining area. A tall avocado chair and a subdued red and avocado striped chair soften the overall red and white color scheme.

Sheer, Filmy Airiest Styles For Hot Weather

Summer is a-comin' in, bringing its usual quota of hot, humid days.

When the temperature soars, you'll want to slip into the coolest, airiest clothing. The best hot weather dresses —and the most fashionable this season—are those that are sheer and filmy. With them, you'll want lingerie. And for pleasant midsummer night dreaming, you'll want special sleepwear, too.

Steamy July weather is clearly a case for sublimely comfortable cotton — cool, opaque, and non-clinging.

WHAT COULD BE more individual than interior decor planned around a personal collections? How much more proud the collection itself is when it dominates the decor, than when it is casually tucked wherever there is room for it. In the room above, a wall front was built with carefully porportioned niches, lighted from above, to give full importance to each individual piece in the collection. Furniture, casual in design, with a faint Mediterranean influence, was chosen to complement the collection. The wood finish is an earthy brown; the carpeting and bedspread are in shades of terra cotta, and the walls are off-white.

New Mill Valley Unit Leader Plans Events For Relief Fund

Mrs. Edward Reichmuth progressed through all of the officers' chairs to her present position as president of the Mill Valley unit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary.

She has been a member for 12 years of this organization devoted to the welfare of veterans, which any female relative of an overseas veteran may join.

Among the events Mrs. Reichmuth plans during her year in office will be a rummage sale in September and a dance in October to raise funds for the unit's relief fund.

A native of Eureka, Carol Reichmuth has lived in Marin ever since she attended grade school in Corte Madera, but since her marriage she has lived in Mill Valley with her husband, a printer, and two daughters. They are Mrs. Donald Wilson of South San Francisco and Pamela Reichmuth, a sixth grade student at Park School.

MRS. REICHMUTH

The new auxiliary president's favorite activities are hiking, sewing and playing canasta, and she enjoys her card club "more than anything."

Other officers serving Muir Woods Post Auxiliary 6741 are Mesdames Reevin Cohen, senior vice president; Barbara Weltner, junior vice president; Tal Childers, secretary; Albert Rometti, treasurer; Peter Silveira, conductress; Carlos Nelson, chaplain; Arthur Peters, guard; Carl Barber, musician; Sam De Pillo, patriotic instructor; and Ella Smith, Tracy Dormady and Wendell Reichmuth, trustees.

Church Group Has Election Officers

Mrs. Robert Smith of Strawberry has been elected president of the Women's Assn. of the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon. She succeeds Mrs. Herbert Spilman.

Other officers are Mrs. Mabel Griffiths, vice president; Mrs. Jay Cason, treasurer and Miss Minnie Calkins, secretary. Mrs. Charles Bassett will continue as telephone chairman.

City Council Not Elected To Do Business In Secret

Do you think it's any of your business how public officials plan to spend your tax money?

Five Fairfax residents, elected as representatives of the people, don't seem to think so.

Last Tuesday night, it came out that the Fairfax City Council had met twice secretly to discuss the city budget for the next fiscal year. By the time the public got its first chance to know what was going on, the decisions had mostly been made.

Councilmen defended this course of action by saying they had been discussing whether to add police or firemen and this amounted to "hiring" and therefore could be done in secret according to state law.

Nonsense!

Not only is this a patent perversion of the provisions of the statute; it is contrary to a basic principle of democracy.

We people pay taxes. We expect those taxes to be used for certain purposes. Two of these purposes, in the case of the City of Fairfax, are fire and police protection. Another is street construction and maintenance.

But the decisions about these had been reached by the council without the people's knowledge. The people had no chance to say whether they would prefer that available funds be used for more police protection or better streets, for instance.

The reason for electing a city council to conduct the city's business is that the town meeting, with every one participating, is too unwieldly. Therefore, the councilmen are elected as the people's representatives.

Nobody elected them as rulers or dictators. Nobody voted them power to decide in secret what they will do with city funds.

Any governing body of any public jurisdiction will have the confidence of the people to just that extent to which it takes the people into its confidence.

The public isn't going to trust officials who don't trust the public.

This Victory Gardener All Shook By Threats To Balance Of Nature

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Each summer since I joined in the colonization of darkest suburbia I have grown a small "victory garden" in my back yard.

Little things that I have heard and read in recent years lead me to believe that the victory garden campaign has been losing momentum since the end of the war. But I have continued to do my part.

People who have the stimulus of war to grow a victory garden belong in the same class with sunshine patriots, I say.

This year, however, we victory gardeners find ourselves caught on the horns of a dilemma, which is the next worse thing to being caught on the horns of a water buffalo.

THE DILEMMA got into the garden by way of Rachel Carson's widely discussed book "Silent Spring." Either that or somebody left the gate open.

At any rate, I was spraying a radish with an anti-tomtit tincture (three parts tetraethyl to one part vermouth) when it hooked me.

Suddenly I straightened up and said to myself "This spray I am using is undoubtedly contributing to the health and well-being of this radish, but how do I know it is not upsetting the balance of Nature?"

Miss Carson, as you know, raised a warning against the headlong use of pesticides and other horticultural chemicals lest it destroy Nature's equilibrium.

Her message has had a profound effect upon us victory gardeners. We figure that Nature isn't any too well balanced anyway.

I PUT DOWN the sprayer and was balancing myself in the hammock when my wife came out and asked why I had quit gardening.

"I'm weighing the benefits that will accrue to our radish from a spraying with an anti-insect solution against the possible disturbing effect that it might have on the natural order of the universe by driving away the insects," I told her.

"I am glad to know that," my wife said. "It appeared to me that you were taking a nap."

"I think better with my eyes closed," I explained.

Later on, I tried to get my mind off the problem by tuning in the ball game. But there was no escape.

As I watched the Washington Senators sink deeper into the cellar of the American League, I couldn't help but wonder if their inability to hit and catch baseballs was a result of the chemicals that the groundskeeper uses on the outfield grass.

If anything, the Senators are even more off balance than Nature is. Perhaps Miss Carson will explore this situation in her next book.

ARTHRITIC DOG HELPS HIMSELF

A dog with arthritis knows where to go to get relief from his aches and pains.

The 15½-year-old terrier's troubles started several years ago when he was hit by a car in Carthage, Mo. He received a fractured left shoulder which later resulted in chronic arthritis.

At the time, the dog's owners took him to the local veterinarian for treatment. The doctor took such good care of him that the satisfied customer continued to return—and alone.

Every three weeks for the past three years, when the arthritis pains get severe, the dog heads for the veterinarian, 16 blocks from his owner's home. He scratches on the door until someone lets him in and then makes his way right to the operating table for an injection of cortisone.

You will be imitating the Master if those in trouble can turn to you in time of stress and know that you will listen with an understanding heart and try to lighten their burden.

Civilian Disregard Of Military Advice Concerns Congress Leaders

WASHINGTON — Congressional leaders in both parties are disturbed and critical of what they see as a pattern of decisions by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and President Kennedy which have the effect—and perhaps the purpose—of reducing the role of the nation's top military leaders in military and military-production matters.

Before attempting to make an assessment of this criticism, let me set out the actions which have most produced this criticism.

THE ACTIONS ARE these:

THE TFX—Secretary McNamara reversed the unanimous judgment of three military review panels in selecting the design and in allocating the contract for the new experimental tactical fighter plane. This is the contract which the McClellan committee is investigating. Thus far, it does not feel that Mr. McNamara has shown overriding reason for rejecting his military advisors.

THE V/STOL—High Navy officers have testified before the Stennis committee that the civilian Defense officials overruled their judgment in the choice and contract award for a new type of vertical and short take-off or landing plane. They say they have recommended a cheaper and better plane.

The stated basis for reversing the military opinion was that while the Douglas Aircraft Co. design was technically superior, the civilian decision-makers thought the Bell Aerosystems Co. — to whom the contract was given —was more experienced. Sen. Goldwater's question: "If Bell was more experienced, why hadn't it submitted a superior design?" No answer.

NEW TEST MORATORIUM

—The Chiefs of Staff of the three services were apparently not consulted and their counter-views passed over by President Kennedy when he proposed a voluntary moratorium on nuclear testing in the atmosphere and pledged that the U.S. would not test as long as Russia didn't. We had such a moratorium once and the Soviets broke it—to our disadvantage.

THE RUBEL PLAN—In order to avoid the necessity—and the embarrassment—of reversing the recommendations of the military on design and contract decisions, Assistant Secretary of Defense John H. Rubel told the McClellan committee a new procedure was being considered. This procedure would limit the military evaluators to technical appraisal of different alternatives, leaving the Secretary of Defense to choose among a series of options—without being confronted with a recommendation.

THESE ARE THE principal developments which have caused much anxiety and considerable criticism among both Democrats and Republicans in Congress.

All the facts are not yet in, but on the basis of present information, I cannot escape these conclusions:

That Secretary McNamara has the responsibility and duty to make a final and independent decision on these weapons systems and where they shall be made.

That he is exercising his authority, not exceeding it.

That there is no proof he has been imprudent.

That it would be a grievous mistake for the Secretary of Defense to blur the military recommendations on design and contract by limiting the military evaluators to offering a series of options without clearly stating their own preferences.

Congress has a duty—and a responsibility—as well as the Secretary of Defense. Its duty is to maintain a constant watch on the way the Executive spends the massive defense funds it appropriates. It deserves to know easily—not with painful prying — when the Secretary has overruled his military advisors. This is fairer to the military, fairer to Congress. It generates heat, but Mr. McNamara is strong enough and able enough to take it.

Judge Brusatori Has Audience With President Of Green Isle

WHEN IN ROME, do as the Romans do.

Judge and Mrs. N. Charles Brusatori, who toured Europe for the past several weeks, followed that adage and got along famously.

When the judge hit Ireland and the natives began calling him Mr. Bruce O'Tory, he let well enough alone. And so it was throughout. They'd leave an Irish restaurant, and the waiters would bow: "Good night, Mr. and Mrs. O'Tory."

The judge and his wife even managed to get an audience with President Eamon de Valera and posed for a couple of photographs with the President.

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Deep Cuts Loom For Foreign Aid

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — While President Kennedy was basking in the plaudits of European throngs, Congress was squaring off to slash his $4.5 billion foreign aid budget deeper than ever before.

All indications are he will be lucky if he winds up with $3.5 billion, and it's very possible it will be around $3.2 billion. Last year, after a long and bitter struggle, Congress finally voted $3.9 billion. The total is certain to be considerably less this session.

Of utmost significance is the fact that the mounting tide of opposition to large-scale foreign aid spending is bipartisan. In both the House and Senate, Republican and Democratic leaders are in the forefront against it.

A striking illustration is Senator Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), who generally supports administration policies.

ALTHOUGH HE WAS one of the leaders of the 1949 drive to secure Senate ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty, and has long favored foreign aid, Morse now is one of its most caustic critics. In a series of Senate speeches and in hearings before the Foreign Relations Committee, he has been raking the President's budget with blistering blasts.

It is noteworthy that Morse is not attacking the basic principle of foreign aid. Neither is he assailing officials connected with this program. His comments, while scathing, are wholly impersonal.

His fire is directed at the policies determining the allocation of foreign aid. In Morse's blunt opinion, they are outmoded, wasteful and indefensible. He is particularly critical of military aid, and cites numerous "senseless" and "incomprehensible" examples.

MORSE HAS BEEN equally scathing in grilling Secretaries Rusk and McNamara in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on the heavily-embattled foreign aid budget.

Castigating President de Gaulle and any attempt by the administration to appease him by "proposing more concessions," and sharply questioning the President's controversial multi-lateral nuclear naval force, Morse contended the time has come to "lay it on the line" to our NATO allies.

Of Defense Secretary McNamara, Morse asked, "Is it your position that the bases in Spain, Greece and Turkey are vital to the defense of the United States?"

"The Joint Chiefs of Staff have gone thoroughly into that subject," replied McNamara, "and it is their opinion, in which I join, that the bases are essential to the defense of the United States."

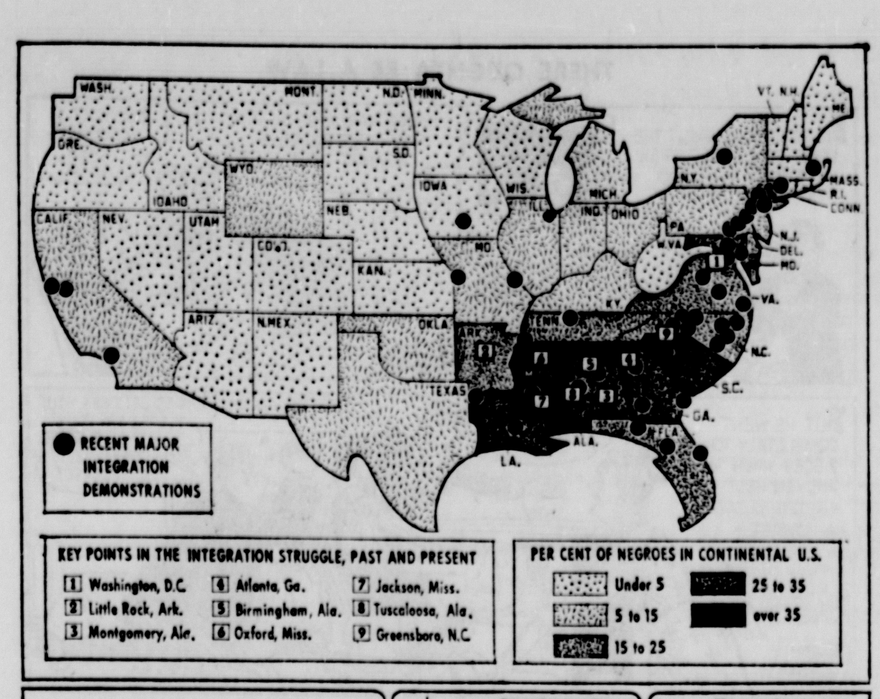
"If that's true," demanded Morse, "why doesn't Europe pay part of the cost of these bases?"

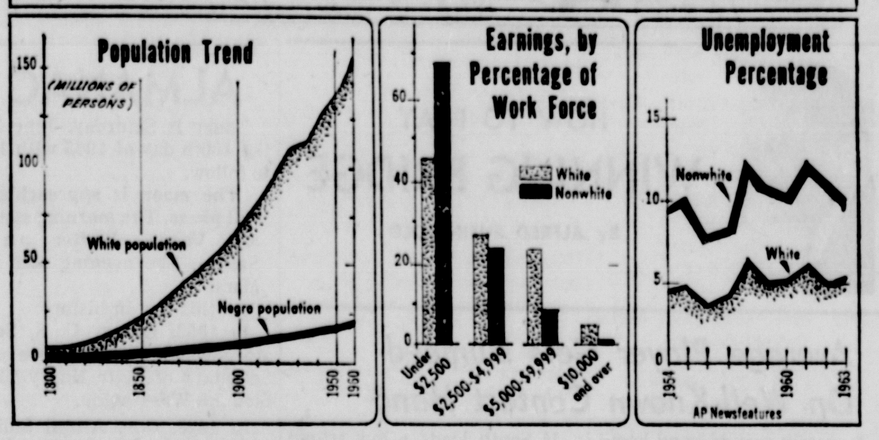
McNAMARA DID NOT directly answer this pertinent question. In a rambling discourse, he argued that the per capita income of Portugal and Spain is much lower than that of the United States.

"So what!" retored Morse. "I'm not suggesting that Spain and Portugal pay us. I am only asking why we must pay them for the privilege of defending them."

There was no reply to that bullseye.

Chances Dim For Rights Peace





By FRANCIS STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Across the nation their names have been thrust into modern American history with explosive impact:

Little Rock . . . Atlanta . . . Montgomery . . . Birmingham . . . Oxford . . . Jackson . . . Lexington, N.C.

Here during the past decade America's integration struggles have led to some of the greatest demonstrations, bitterness and bloodshed.

But the south is not alone.

The north has experienced its share too, in such metropolitan centers as New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Providence.

These are not all the places by any means—north, south, east or west—and the list may include many more in time.

Despite the prayers, hopes and efforts of thousands of white and Negro leaders alike that the issue may be solved peacefully in the future, there are many fearful of worse violence.

"So you get the feeling, just as you can feel the June storm coming, that there is terrible trouble ahead; that blood will flow this summer, and lives will be lost, and the nation will suffer deep scars which will be a long time healing. Because we did not work it out, we are one the verge of fighting it out."

Since the 1954 Supreme Court decision ruling unconstitutional racial segregation in public schools, there has been a rising tide of strife. The friction between white and Negro has resulted in injury to hundreds of persons, and arrest of thousands, largely Negroes. In less than a year there have been at least five deaths.

Among the major focal points of the struggle in earlier years were Montgomery, Ala., during the 1956 bus boycott by Negroes, and the 1957 integration of Central High School at Little Rock, Ark. Since then the eruptions have been coming thick and fast.

In 1960, at Greensboro, N.C., began the great wave of Negro lunch counter and other sit-ins which was to spread over virtually all the deep south and much of the north as well.

There were buying boycotts as well, and hordes of northern "Freedom Riders" sped south to take part in the general crusade. The latter, too, often led to clashes, injury and arrests.

The most violent of all clashes over college desegregation occurred last fall at the University of Mississippi, Oxford, over the registration of a Negro, James Meredith. Two persons were killed and a number of others hurt. All is peaceful there now, however, and another Negro student has just been admitted.

Massive Negro demonstrations of various types have been staged by the score of late in Jackson, Miss., where a Negro leader was slain; Birmingham, Atlanta, St. Louis, Tallahassee, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, and Cambridge, Md., Danville, Va., Fayetteville, N.C., and numerous other towns and cities.

But on the other hand, much desegregation has been achieved by peaceful means in recent weeks.

At the University of Alabama there was only a token resistanace as two students enrolled. At Texas A. & M. Negroes were admitted for the first time in 92 years.

In countless places over the south racial barriers were being quietly dropped in hotels, restaurants, theaters and retail stores, the justice department reported.

A departmnt spokesman said some desegregation of facilities had occurred in 143 major cities in southern and border states.

However, he predicted that long, last-ditch resistance could be expected in at least 35 other cities below or near the Mason-Dixon line.

Meanwhile, Southern School News, publications of the Southern Education Reporting Service at Nashville, reported that the number of Negro children attending public school in southern and border states is slowly increasing.

In the 17 states and the District of Columbia, it was said, 264,655 of the area's 3,326,398 Negro pupils were attending public elementary and high schools with white students at the end of the last school term. The number of Negroes was said to have increasd by 9,298, in comparison with the start of the term.

Only Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina were listed as having no integrated public elementary or high schools.

SCIENCE BREAKTHROUGHS SPUR PEACEFUL A-PLANTS

By GEORGE C. HARLAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—The peaceful atom experienced a notoriety as shortlived as a Miss America. Although eclipsed by space exploration, it is a good bet that nuclear energy will have fulfilled much of its early promise by the time man first touches down on the moon.

After years of frustrations and disenchantment, recent technological breakthrough in harnessing the power of the atom have triggered renewed activity in the field.

But it shapes up as tough battle against competing fuels and a large segment of the public which views with alarm crackling atoms as a close neighbor.

Proponents of atomic power concede that this new energy source will not in the foreseeable future replace conventional fuel sources—coal, water, oil and gas—but argue that it will be needed to supplement present fuels to meet the expected rapid expansion of power needs.

Until very recently, producing electricity from an atomic reaction was too costly to compete with conventional means except in certain regions where coal or water are not readily available.

Over the past decade most atomic power plants were built as experiments with big injections of federal funds. The government is still underwriting a sizable portion of atomic research and development, but private industry, after years of cautious skepticism, today is gambling millions in the hope of someday reaping big profits from the venture.

In the present state of technology atomic energy could compete with new conventional installations in about 50 per cent of the nation's power markets. Progress in this area has outstripped some of the more optimistic timetables in the past six months.

To date there are 25 atomic power plants either in operation or in varying stages of planning, development and construction in this country. Ten of these are now operating and eight are scheduled to be functioning by the end of 1963. All are expected to be working by 1970. The total investment will be about 1.2 billion dollars.

Perhaps the most formidable challenge to atomic power is posed by an enemy that is both invisible and unpredictable—fear.

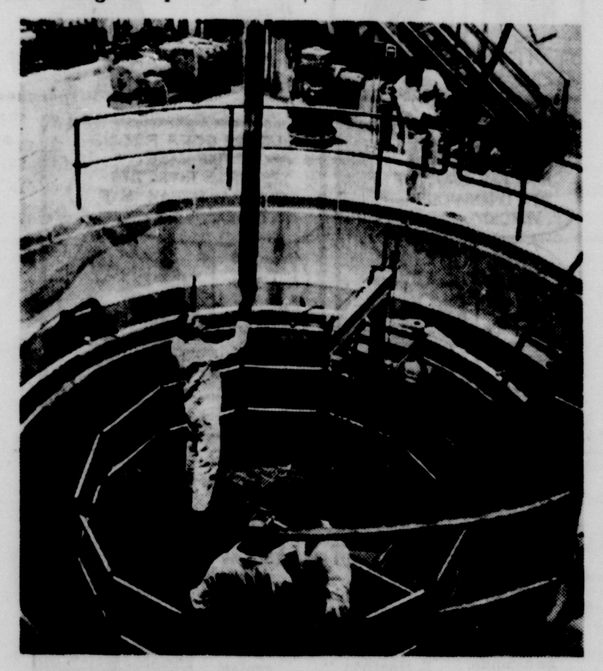
Radiation is the only hazard associated with an atomic power station. The nature of the atomic reaction makes any bomb-like explosion impossible.

Power from the atom must be tapped in the area served to be competitive with power stations using other fuels. It is generally felt that on the issue of location hangs the future of nuclear power as a source of electricity in large metropolitan areas.

Although scientists are divided on the hazards attached to nuclear projects in heavily populated areas, atomic adherents say the record speaks for itself.

The dispute over atomic plant sites has cropped up in other parts of the country. One such is the location of the Bodega Bay reactor, embroiled in the courts.

The outcome of the struggle of atomic power to win acceptance is still unclear. But the stakes are said to be large. The AEC has forecast that if the way is opened half of the nation's electric power will be generated by the atom by the end of this century at annual savings of four to five billion dollars over conventional methods.



ATOM POWER PLANT—This is an inside view of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s Humboldt nuclear power plant, located on tidelands of Humboldt Bay at Eureka. It has been predicted that nuclear power plants will be the main source of the nation's power by 1970.

Classroom Population Continues Steady Rise

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Proposals for federal aid to education may be at a standstill, but the statistics on shortages of classrooms and teachers are not.

The numbers of children in elementary and secondary schools and colleges have been steadily rising. Classrooms are being built, and the number of teachers is increasing, but shortages remain.

For example:

A record 38,837,000 were enrolled in public elementary and secondary schools in the Fall of 1962—a 3.7 per cent rise over the fall of 1961. The rate of growth varied widely among the four regions, with the West and Southwest regions growing the most rapidly and the Southeast region the slowest.

Figures for the most recent school year available show that there were 5.7 million pupils in private elementary and secondary schools in the 1959-60 school year. It is estimated that there were 5.5 million children in Catholic schools during the 1962-63 school year.

There were 1.5 million full-time and part-time teachers in the fall of 1962, a rise of 3.4 per cent over 1961.

College enrollment jumped by 8.1 per cent between the fall of 1961 and 1962. More rises are expected as those born during the "baby boom" of the mid-1940's are now becoming of college age.

In the last school year, California had 2,798,000 enrolled in kindergarten through the eighth grade in the public schools and 957,000 in the ninth through 12th grades.

California ranked fourth in growth in the number of public elementary and secondary school pupils between the fall of 1961 and fall of 1962, with a 5.9 per cent growth.

In the 1959-60 school year, it had 272,927 pupils in the kindergarten through the eighth grade in private schools and 73,036 pupils in private schools in the ninth through 12th grades.

In the fall of 1962, there were 551,524 students going to college in California, a rise of 10.4 per cent from the fall of 1961. California had a classroom shortage of 2,000 in the fall of 1962 and planned to build 8,000 classrooms during the school year.

This Week In The World

Khrushchev's Timing Is Off

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Khrushchev has been a successful politician because he is a master at timing his shots, but this week something happened to his watch.

Nikita Sergeivich could not have picked a more inopportune time to call upon the citizenry of East Berlin.

But he felt the trip was really necessary because President John F. Kennedy had gone to West Berlin and won repeated ovations from the people living on the other side of the wall.

He should have stayed at home, if he was seeking to win a popularity contest, the crowd which turned out to greet him was small and apathetic, compared with the tumultuous throngs that constantly mobbed Kennedy during his stay on the West side.

While in Berlin Kennedy got a look at the wall. What he saw inspired the president to tell the West Berliners: "Freedom has many difficulties and democracy isn't perfect. But we've never had to put up a wall to keep our people in."

The warm reception received by Kennedy in West Berlin was only a preparation of what was to come later, when he made a sentimental journey to Ireland, the home of his forebears.

The Irish greeted him as a native son and called him "Cousin Jack." He found it difficult to get about in both Dublin and Cork because of the surging well-wishers. In Cork a crowd swarmed the president and caused him to fall down in the back seat of his limousine, but he was not injured.

Kennedy became the first foreigner to address the Dail, Ireland's parliament. He cited Ireland as a nation which kept fighting for its freedom and said this successful struggle should always be kept in mind by the fettered nations of Eastern Europe.

Kennedy's next stop will be Britain for conferences with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who late this week said he would lead the Conservative Party in the next general elections.

Around The World Around The Week

San Francisco — The Young National Republican Convention indicated Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona was their favorite candidate for the 1964 presidential nomination.

Dublin — In a surprise move, President Kennedy chose Henry Cabot Lodge to become ambassador to South Viet Nam.

Washington — The Senate approved Kennedy's 455-million-dollar aid to the depressed areas program.

Moscow — Before leaving for East Berlin, Khrushchev accused Red China of aggravating "to the limit" its relations with other Communist nations.

Yellow Robes Signify New Political Force In Viet Nam

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—From a peaceful monotony of temple bells, incense smoke and meditation, a new force has emerged in South Viet Nam—a force that can drive a man to burn himself to death in the fervor of his belief.

For the past month, yellow-robed Buddhist monks have moved and acted with the determination and precision of soldiers in a drive that has shaken the government and nation.

Even U.S. policies here have undergone some re-evaluation.

Never before have Buddhist monks of this country shown such zeal in their non-violent campaign for "religious equality and social justice." Many sects have settled old differences among themselves and there is sense of rejuvenated faith.

"We are all Buddhists and we must work together," one said.

On the surface little seems changed.

Monks rise with the first clang of the temple bell at 4:30 a.m. Their lives are austere and dedicated. In the major sects, monks may not marry, and are forbidden to eat meat, fish or eggs. Their heads are shaved.

Daily activities for senior monks include prayers and meditation, and teaching classes in theology, Vietnamese culture and foreign languages. English is the favorite foreign language.

Novices and junior monks study, prepare food, keep buildings clean and run errands.

For the Buddhist followers, monks officiate at weddings and funerals, give lectures and minister to spiritual needs.

Saigon monks, formerly forbidden to touch money, now carry small change to get around in buses and taxis. Pagodas have treasurer monks. Even the monks' practice of begging for rice and clothing from house to house largely has died out. Begging now is handled by lay business managers on a more efficient basis.

Contacts with foreigners have brought new ideas to Vietnamese Buddhism. Monks often study abroad.

The Rev. Thich Quang Lien, a 37-year-old monk who studied comparative religion and political science at Yale University, now teaches fellow monks English.

Buddhist protest activity came to a climax June 11, when the Rev. Thich Quang Duc, a 72-year-old monk born in the coastal town of Nha Trang, set fire to his gasoline-soaked robes in a main street intersection and burned to death.

Suicide is new to Vietnamese Buddhist leaders, whose faith pledges them to nonviolence.

"Normally," Quang Lien said, "we strictly forbid such things. But we have never been faced with dangers like the present.

"The Rev. Quang Due came to us from his pagoda (at Cai Lay in the Mekong River delta), offering to burn his body for our cause of religious equality. At first, Buddhist leaders said no.

"But the situation for us became more difficult, as the government made new restrictions. So, in the end we voted to accept the courageous offer of Quang Duc, and permit him to do as he wished."

While monks insist they are not concerned with politics, some say openly they would prefer a government under which greater freedom of thought is possible. Monks have been arrested on street corners while handing out tracts that say so.

New ideas about Buddhist activities have brought radios, tape recorders, loudspeaker systems, telephones and pick-up trucks to the ancient pagodas. When Quang Duc died, monks with cameras photographed the scene.

Outsiders have expressed puzzlement by the strident new tone of Vietnam's Buddhism. For about 80 per cent of the population, a Buddhist monk is both a part of the community and a symbol of spiritual authority. Some see in Buddhist leaders potential saviors of Viet Nam.

In any case, the new vigor of Vietnamese Buddhism has become a force to reckon with in the tangle of war and politics that is South Viet Nam.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Average Player Gets Dumped On Well-Known Contest Hand

A certain sort of hand keeps cropping up in par contests, and perhaps it also occurs often in play.

The key play is interesting because it indicates a kind of planning that may often be helpful.

Opening lead — ♣ K

South ruffs the third round of clubs and must now lead trumps in the hope of losing only three trump tricks.

JACK OF SPADES

You know perfectly well what the average player leads. He pushes out the jack of spades—and goes down.

West wins with the ace of spades and gets out with any card at all. South now has to lead the 10 of spades to the king; later he leads the nine of spades to the queen.

Thereupon East wins his long-delayed trick with the eight of spades.

ANY BAD BREAK

The same sort of thing will happen if there is any 4 to 1 trump break. The singleton may be the ace, king, queen, eight, or seven, and the lead of the jack will result in the loss of four trump tricks.

It doesn't matter which spade South leads if the missing trumps break 3 to 2. He can lead high, low, or middling—and the opponents will take only three tricks.

SOUTH DOOMED

Likewise it doesn't matter what South leads if either opponent has A-K-Q-8 or A-K-Q-7. South is doomed to defeat.

It does make a difference if either opponent has a singleton honor. Then South can save himself by starting with a low trump.

If South leads a low trump to the ace, he can later lead the jack and 10 to force out the king and queen.

He will still have the nine of spades to capture East's eight, and the contract is safe.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

It Is Not Good For Person To Remain Sitting Too Long

VAN DELLEN

Air travel is wonderful but on long trips, don't sit too long. Stand up every hour and walk about the plane to allow blood to circulate in the extremities. One of our readers learned this the hard way. He developed phlebitis (inflammation of a vein) in one leg, though he never had suffered from a circulatory disturbance before.

"All doctors and one registered nurse, both in Chicago and in Germany, agreed this trouble was the direct result of the seven-hour flight from Chicago to London, sitting in a cramped, crowded position with my legs suspended almost all the time, during much of which I was asleep. Everyone connected with the medical profession said I should have gotten up and walked around periodically to prevent stagnation of blood in the lower extremities. This I didn't know before."

THE ATTACK spoiled this man's trip since it was planned and organized without regard to the possibility of becoming ill. This is an unusual complication from sitting in one position for a long period. Swelling of the legs is more likely to occur. This condition is unsightly but usually disappears within 24 hours. On the other hand, the basic cause of both conditions is the same (stagnation or pooling of blood in the legs). It is surprising phlebitis does not develop more often in individuals who remain immobile for long periods.

A READER was grateful for my warning about applying too much heat to the extremities of an elderly person with hardening of the arteries. She writes: "Your column on arteriosclerosis and the use of heat saved me from a possible tragic mistake. My father is 87 and complained of cold hands and feet. We bought him a hand warmer for Christmas but decided to consult his physicians at the clinic after reading your article. They agreed heat was not for him. Please accept my heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

I HAVE SEEN several instances of gangrene of the toes or feet following the application of too much heat. By too much, we mean temperatures in excess of 90 degrees F. Heat increases cell metabolism, and when the circulation is poor, as in oldsters, it cannot meet the extra demands of the tissues for more blood. If the cells do not obtain adequate nourishment, they die. Normal extremities can take as much heat as the skin will tolerate because the arteries are capable of delivering all the blood the warmed-up tissues need.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

NURSING AND CONCEPTION

M. B. writes: Can a nursing mother become pregnant?

REPLY

Yes, but conception is less likely to occur in nursing mothers. Ordinarily, fertility does not return until after one or two periods.

DIET AND PRESSURE

L. P. writes: I have diverticulitis and high blood pressure. I diet for the first disorder. Do I have to diet for the second also?

REPLY

No, except to avoid salt and overweight.

SUN AND ECZEMA

J. P. writes: Does sunlight aggravate eczema?

REPLY

Not as a rule. The exception occurs when eczema is caused by factors that make the skin more sensitive to ultraviolet rays.

CAN'T TAKE PAIN

R. M. writes: Can anything be done to lessen hypersensitivity to pain?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge, unless the hyperreaction is associated with an emotional problem.

NEW BODEGA BAY COAST GUARD STATION

Search and rescue operations and federal law enforcement along the California coast from Point Reyes to Point Arena will be directed from a $175,000 Coast Guard station to be commissioned at 2:30 p. m. July 6 on land contributed by Sonoma County, along with $75,000 worth of improvements, in Doran County Park west of Bodega Bay. An 11-man crew will serve what is considered one of the most modern, efficient and flexible rescue stations in the world. Features include a helicopter landing pad and operations base for a 95-foot cutter. This is the first such station to be established on the West Coast but more are planned.

Dixie Summer School To Open

Dixie School District's five-week summer school will open Monday at all six schools in the district.

Enrollments in the summer classes will be accepted on opening day, Supt. Dennie B. Willis said. More than 1,000 students, about half the total number eligible, have already signed up for the program, he said.

Classes will be held each day from 8:30 a.m. 'till 12:30 p.m. Sixth and seventh grade classes will be held at the Vallecito School; third, fourth and fifth grade classes at the Bernard Hoffman and Lucas Valley schools, and first and second grade classes at all schools except Vallecito.

The summer school will close Aug. 2.

Two Men Deny Assault Charge

Two San Francisco men, accused of raping a 16-year-old girl near Stinson Beach Tuesday morning, denied the charges in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Harold J. Haley set 1:30 p.m. July 8 as the time for a preliminary hearing for Jose Edgardo Roa, 26, a hospital porter; and Eddie Jose Nunez, 21, dairy worker. Both are originally from Nicaragua.

The girl, also from San Francisco, told Marin sheriff's inspectors she went for a midnight drive with the two after a dance, and was assaulted in their car.

Marin Girl To Live, Travel In Mexico

Linda C. Foster, a senior at Redwood High School, has been chosen to live and travel in Mexico this summer under the Experiment in International Living.

Miss Foster, 17, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles R. Foster of Corte Madera, will leave July 5 for an orientation session in Houston, Tex., then depart July 9 for Morelia, Mexico.

She will live with a Mexican family for half her two-month stay in the southern country, then travel with a group including a member of the family where she has stayed.

"I'm looking forward most to living with my family, even if I don't know yet who they are," said Miss Foster. She is brushing up on Mexican history and reading "The Labyrinth of Silence" by Octavio Paz, required reading before her departure.

Vice president of the high school honorary foreign language society, Phi Lambda Sigma, Miss Foster will begin her senior year after returning from Mexico at the end of August. She has studied Spanish for six months and was recommended for the trip by the high school where she has maintained a B-plus average.

She is a member of the California Scholarship Federation and will be co-editor of the school year book next term.

Her father is a professor of air science with the Air Force at San Francisco State College. The family, including Miss Foster's three sisters, Frances, 13; Ruth, 12, and Jane, 11, lives at 10 Hickory Avenue, Corte Madera.

Gets Fellowship

Gerald Lee Fullerton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Fullerton of 51 Martens Boulevard, San Rafael, has been awarded a Ford Foundation Fellowship to study for his masters degree at Stanford University. Fullerton was awarded a bachelor of arts degree with distinction from Stanford in June.

JUBILATION ON RECEIVING WALKER

Mrs. May Giesecke of 425 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley, registered a large smile this week as she received a wheel chair which will enable her to get around her house by herself. The chair, or walker, was presented by Charles E. Kelly of Mill Valley, co-chairman of the Independent Order of Foresters of San Francisco. A program has been started by the fraternal order to raise money for the chairs which will be given away. (Independent-Journal photo)

Two Youths Hurt In Auto Smashup

Two youths were hurt last night after the car one of them was driving skidded and ran into a ditch shortly before midnight on the Corte Madera Grade, just south of Vasco Drive in Mill Valley.

Treated at Marin General Hospital were the driver, James Reynolds, 18, of 2111 Centro East, Tiburon, for a scraped right shoulder and Eric Dahlstrom, 18, of 70 Monte Mar Drive, Sausalito, for cuts on his face and right ring finger.

Nurse Service Costs To Hike

The cost of a private duty nurse will increase Monday from $20 to $25 for an eight-hour shift.

The boost, approved by the California Nurses' Assn., is the first increase for private duty nurses since 1959, reported Mrs. Mary Clark, president of Marin County Nurses' Assn., District 28 of the state association.

The new fee schedule will bring private duty nurse fees into alignment with salaries and fringe benefits for experienced hospital staff nurses, with tenure, who are employed in private and public hospitals throughout the state, said Mrs. Esther Hill, private duty section chairman of the county association.

Negroes Due Job Questions

One thousand questionnaires asking Negroes if they want better jobs will be passed out in Marin City tomorrow by members of the Congress of Racial Equality.

"This is to inform you that Marin CORE is interested in finding job possibilities for minorities in Marin County regardless of educational background," says the questionnaire, which asks what job the applicant has and which one he wants.

"This information will give us the background we need to help minorities find jobs in the county," said Douglas Quiett, CORE chapter president.

Mill Valley Man Made Episcopal Deacon

Giants Mays, Bailey Elected To N.L. All-Star Squad

NEW YORK (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals placed three members of their brilliant infield on the National League All-Star team today while pint-sized Albie Pearson of the Los Angeles Angels was picked to replace ailing New York Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle on the American League squad.

First-baseman Bill White, shortstop Dick Groat and third-baseman Ken Boyer of the Cardinals were named to the N.L. starting team which also include second-baseman Bill Mazeroski of the Pittsburgh Pirates, centerfielder Willie Mays and catcher Ed Bailey of the San Francisco Giants, left-hander Tommy Davis of the Los Angeles Dodgers and right-fielder Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves.

The A. L. squad, with Pearson replacing Mantle in a unique "double vote," will open with the Yankees' Joe Pepitone at first base, Nelson Fox of the Chicago White Sox at second, Zoilo Versalles of the Minnesota Twins at short-stop and Frank Malzone of the Boston Red Sox at third.

The A. L. outfield will be manned by Pearson in center, the Angels' Leon Wagner in left and the Detroit Tigers' Al Kaline in right. Earl Battey of the Twins will be the catcher. The Angels and Twins are the only teams with more than one starter in the A.L. lineup.

The selections were made in league-wide balloting of the players, who were forbidden to vote for players on their own teams, and announced by baseball Commissioner Ford Frick. This year's All-Star game—there will be only one this year as opposed to two in each of the last four years—will be played in massive Cleveland Stadium, July 9.

The pitching selections will be made by rival managers Alvin Dark of the N.L. and Ralph Houk of the A.L. a few days before the game. The 16 starters named by the players are required to play the first three innings, barring injury. The managers are free to fill out the remainder of the 25-man squads as they see fit although they almost invariably stick closely to the voting pattern of the players.

Second-place finishers in the player-voting, therefore, may be considered "automatic" selections to the squads.

A. L players were asked to vote twice for a starting centerfielder—the first time on the assumption that Mantle would be able to play and the second on the assumption that he would not. Mantle was selected in the first vote but Pearson won easily in the second. It is definite that Mantle will be unable to play until July 11 or later.

Groat, the Pirates' MVP shortstop in 1960 who was traded to the Cardinals last Nov. 19, was the top vote-getter in both leagues with 238 of the 285 N.L. votes for shortstop. Aaron was second in the N.L. with 230, followed by Mazeroski with 227, White with 220 and Boyer with 186. Kaline was the top vote-getter in the A.L. with 226 followed by Battey's 196 and Versalles' 183. There were 270 votes cast for each position in the A.L.

The "great debate" over the relative merits of A.L. third-basemen was resolved decisively in favor of Malzone, 184 votes to 67 for Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles.

A.L. voters also "snubbed" Yankee slugger Roger Maris inasmuch as Bob Allison of the Twins finished second to Kaline in the voting for right field with only 25 votes.

Following are the first two choices for each position in the player vote:

NATIONAL LEAGUE

First base: Bill White, Cardinals, 220, Orlando Cepeda, Giants, 33; second base: Bill Mazeroski, Pirates, 227, Ken Hubbs, Cubs, 14; shortstop: Dick Groat, Cardinals, 238, Maury Wills, Dodgers, 25; third base: Ken Boyer, Cardinals, 186, Ron Santo, Cubs, 52; left field: Tommy Davis, Dodgers, 141, Frank Robinson, Reds, 82; center field: Willie Mays, Giants, 169, Vada Pinson, Reds, 82; right field: Henry Aaron, Braves, 230, Bob Clemente, Pirates, 22; catcher: Ed Bailey, Giants, 129, Johnny Edwards, Reds, 82.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

First base: Joe Pepitone, Yankees, 112, Dick Stuart, Red Sox, 62; second base: Nelson Fox, White Sox, 141, Bobby Richardson, Yankees, 63; shortstop: Zoilo Versalles, Twins, 183, Luis Aparicio, Orioles, 46; third base: Frank Malzone, Red Sox, 134, Brooks Robinson, Orioles, 67; left field: Leon Wagner, Angels, 169, Carl Yastrzemski, Red Sox, 51; center field: Mickey Mantle, Yankees, 131, Albie Pearson, Angels, 104 (Pearson wins because Mantle is injured); right field: Al Kaline, Tigers, 226, Bob Allison, Twins, 25; catcher: Earl Battey, Twins, 196, Elston Howard, Yankees, 70.

N. L. ROUNDUP

Spahn Nears Two Records

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

If Warren Spahn is still good enough to rout a 15-year-old jinx, who is to say that two of the National League's most honored pitching records are beyond his reach?

The marks in question are the 13 20-victory seasons achieved by Christy Mathewson and the career total of 373 wins compiled by both Mathewson and Grover Cleveland Alexander in the days of the dead ball.

Both records have been regarded as unassailable by modern pitchers but then again the 42-year old native of Buffalo, N.Y., is neither an "old timer" nor a "modern" but a pitcher for all ages.

Spahn took another bold step toward his twin goals—and in the bargain chased a 15-year old jinx—last night when he pitched a three-hitter that gave the Milwaukee Braves a 1-0 win over the Los Angeles Dodgers. The victory (1) was his 11th of the season, placing him more than halfway toward his 13th 20-triumph season, (2) the 338th of his career, leaving him 35 shy of the all-time N.L. mark and (3) marked the first time he has beaten the Dodgers away from his home park since Aug. 21, 1948.

Spahn struck out only two batters but didn't walk one in besting Dodger ace Don Drysdale and raising his season mark to 11-3. The Braves scored the only run of the game in the first inning when they filled the bases on singles by Lee Maye and Hank Aaron, a walk to Eddie Mathews and a sacrifice fly by catcher Joe Torre.

Torre also came to his batterymate's aid in the ninth inning when he cut down Dodger speedster Maury Wills trying to scramble back to first base after an abortive stolen base attempt.

CARDS WIN

The St. Louis Cardinals retained first place with a 9-2 triumph over the Houston Colts, the San Francisco Giants downed the Cincinnati Reds, 7-3, the Chicago Cubs edged out the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-3, and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the New York Mets, 3-1, in other N.L. action.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the New York Yankees, 4-3, the Minnesota Twins routed the Washington Senators, 11-4 and 10-3, the Los Angeles Angels and Detroit Tigers split a doubleheader by 8-3 scores, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, and the Baltimore Orioles topped the Kansas City A's, 2-1.

Bob Gibson struck out 13 and pitched a six-hitter and Curt Flood drove in four runs with three singles as the Cardinals dealt the Colts their 15th loss in 17 games. The Colts sabotaged the work of four pitchers with five errors as Dick Drott dropped his sixth decision.

11 STRIKEOUTS

Dick Ellsworth struck out 11 in achieving his 10th win for the Cubs, who won out over the Phillies when Ron Santo homered off Jack Baldschun in the 11th. Don Demeter had a double and three singles for the Phillies and Santo and Dick Bertell had two hits each for the Cubs.

Bill Virdon's two-run homer and Al McBean's 2⅔ innings of shutout relief pitching led the Pirates to their victory over the Mets. Roger Craig suffered his 10th straight defeat and his 12th of the season. Virdon has hit safely in 10 straight games and has 12 hits in his last 30 times at bat.

PONY LEAGUE STAR TOSSES A NO-HITTER

Dan Corona, 14-year-old Terra Linda youth, hurled a no-hit, no-run game as he pitched his Casa Marin baseball team to a 4-0 victory over the Rotary yesterday in San Rafael Pony League action at Albert Field.

Only three Rotary batters reached first base, one on a walk and two via errors, but none got as far as second. Corona struck out 12 men in the seven inning contest while helping his own cause with three hits and two runs batted in.

In 50 innings pitched so far this year, the young star has struck out 105 batters, has walked only six and has allowed only two earned runs. He also leads his team in hitting.

Corona will start his freshman year at Terra Linda High School in September and should provide quite a boost to the school's baseball hopes in the Marin Athletic League.

AMATEURS

One Norcal Golfer In Cal Semis

PEBBLE BEACH (AP) — Golfers of distinction were notably missing from the California Amateur Golf Championships today as three Southern Californians and a lone northerner clashed in the 36-hole semi-finals.

None of them ever has won a major tournament, although Los Angeles lawyer Dick Runkle was runner up here in 1959.

Last of the "name" players to be handed a one-way ticket home was lanky George Archer, current trans-Mississippi and San Francisco City champion, whose game came apart in the quarter finals yesterday afternoon.

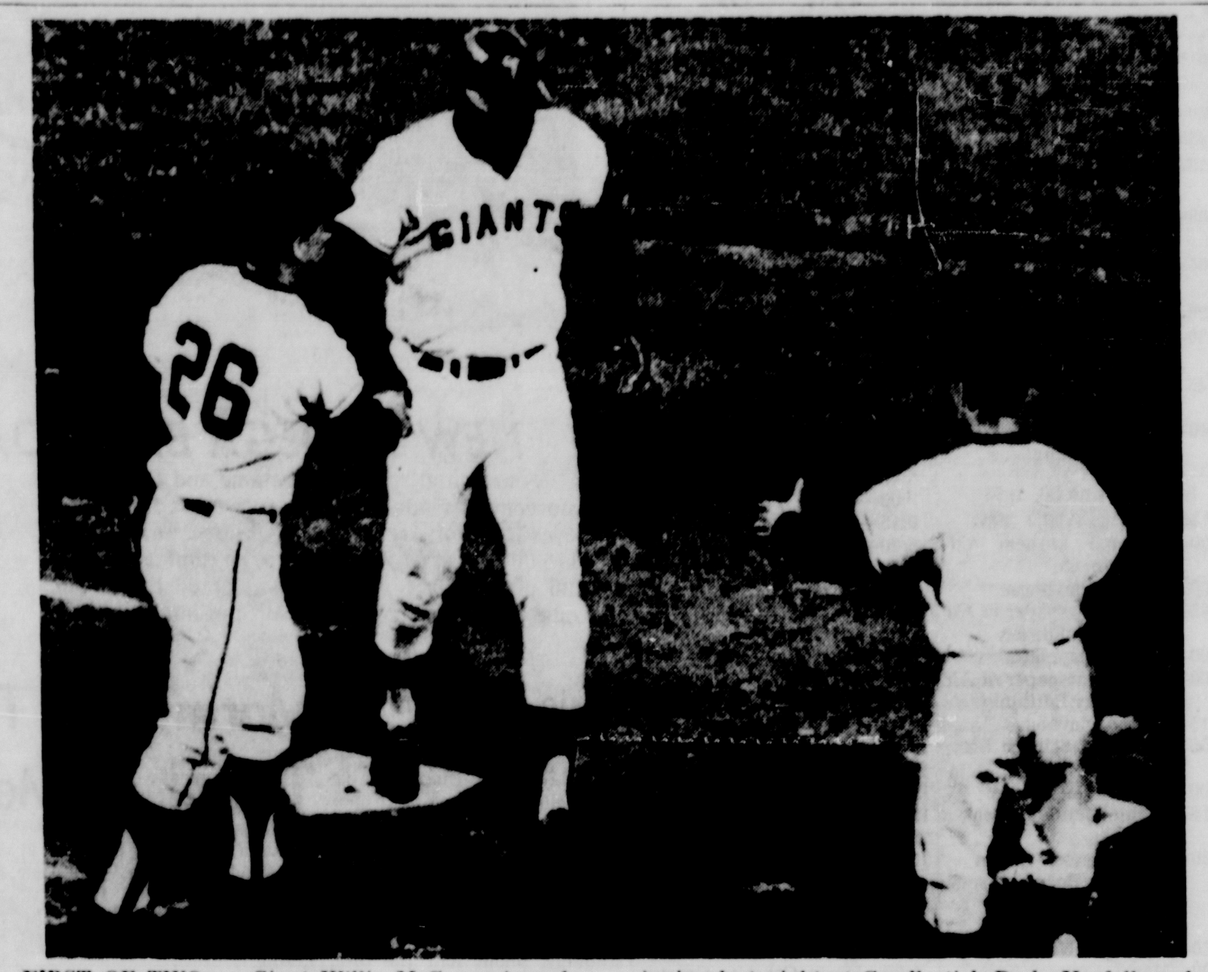
Slow-playing David Bohannon of San Mateo, never a winner of anything more important than club tournaments, cut the favored Archer down 5-4.

Runkel, onetime star of the UCLA team, shot two under par golf in the 14 holes it took him to eliminate Lloyd Rossi, 42, Diablo contractor, who went to the showers five over.

TOUGH COURSE

Runkle, 35, with five years of seasoning in this state amateur behind him, went against Bohanon, 29, in today's test over the 6,747-yard Pebble Beach course, which has been playing tough with the wind whipping off Carmel Bay.

Hottest item in yesterday's two rounds was San Diegan James Rheim Jr., 20, mechanical engineering senior at Stanford, who slaughtered Warner Keeley, Monterey insurance man, 8-7. The 6 foot, 3 inch Rheim, a powerful, long hitting youngster, carded three-under-par golf in the 11 holes it took him to finish off Keeley. Rheim, No. 2 man on the Stanford golf team, won the first seven holes.



FIRST OF TWO — Giant Willie McCovey is welcomed at the plate by teammate Chuck Hiller (26) and the bat boy after belting a 455-foot two-run homer over the right-centerfield fence in the first inning last night at Candlestick Park. He followed that clout with another four-master, that one in the eighth inning. His 16th and 17th homers helped the Giants blast the Cincinnati Reds 7-3. (AP Wirephoto)

A Traffic Jam In Cleveland

Independent-Journal Sports

10 Independent-Journal, Saturday, June 29, 1963

CLEVELAND (AP)—The $110,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament featured a traffic jam today with 75 survivors of the first two rounds packed within eight strokes of each other.

PGA officials said it is the tightest concentration of talent in years, and they've arranged an 18-hole Monday playoff instead of a sudden-death climax if a 72-hole deadlock occurs.

The red-hot field short-circuited Beechmont County Club's par 71 plant through the first 36 holes of the four-day chase, and 51 hit the halfway mark under the card. Scores of 143, one over, were necessary to survive the cutoff.

Heading the pack with 135 after rounds of 66 and 69 were 40-year-old Bo Wininger, Oklahoma's big game hunter; 27-year-old Gary Player, who comes from South Africa, where Wininger shoots his lions and such; and 26-year-old Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., 1958 national amateur finalist.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who described his pair of 68 rounds as "just fair," was wrapped in a four-way tie at 136 with Tony Lema, the year's fourth ranking money winner; Jim Ferree, who had eight birdies yesterday and missed a tie for the top by bogeying the 18th; and Bob Goalby, who admitted, "I've had a hot putter since the third hole of the tournament."

Veteran Sam Snead and first-round co-leader Bill Eggers were tied at 137 with Rod Funseth of Spokane and Don January. They were a stroke up on a five-way jam which included U.S. Open champion Julius Boros and Mason Rudolph. The latter had six consecutive birdies yesterday.

Arnold Palmer was in position to make one of his famous stretch drives, but he had a lot of company at 139, where 11 are bracketed.

Only 2 Yanks Remain At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—It's a pretty good bet that the early bird who caught the worm didn't come from an American university.

That's the opinion of many of the U.S. squad battling their way through these 77th Wimbledon tennis championships.

Both Chuck McKinley and Frank Froehling — the last Americans in the men's singles—say most of the U.S. players arrived too late to do much good. The reason: Many were tied up right until last week in U.S. intercollegiate tournaments.

McKinley and Froehling—both students at Trinity University in San Antonio—were given special permission to duck the intercollegiates and come to Europe early. McKinley arrived three weeks ago, Froehling had a week's warm up in a pre-Wimbledon tournament.

But talented Americans like Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif.; Bill Bond, San Diego, Calif.; and Tom Edlefson, Berkeley, Calif., as well as Mexico's Rafael Osuna, a student at the University of Southern California were all on duty in the intercollegiates at Princeton, N.J.

Thrown into action here on grass courts and virtually at a moment's notice, Bond went out in the first round, Ralston in the second and Osuna and Edlefsen in the third. The field of 20 young Americans was trimmed to two by the time the round of 16 was reached.

McKinley lasted his way into the quarter-finals yesterday with a typical mixture of good and indifferent shots against Jaidip Mukerjea of India, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3. The 22-year-old American has yet to drop a set in this tournament.

McKinley now meets Australia's Martin Mulligan, last year's defeated finalist, or British Davis Cupper Bobby Wilson in the scrap for a semi-final place.

Froehling still has to win his berth in the quarter-finals. He plays today against Roger Taylor, a 20-year-old Briton with a big serve but not long on experience. Mulligan and Wilson also play today.

Raiders, N.Y. Will Get First Pick Of Discards

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—New York and Oakland, the American Football League's weak sisters, will have the first chances in the AFL to sign players cut by any professional teams.

Commissioner Joe Foss reported yesterday that AFL club officials, in a further effort to bolster the two teams, reaffirmed a proposal intially approved last month.

Under the plan, New York and the Oakland Raiders would have 30-day periods, after players were cut, in which to try to sign the ones in whom they were interested. After the 30 days, all eight AFL teams could go after individual players.

The program will only be in effect this year, Foss said.

Foss spoke to newsmen following a non-stop 9½-hour meeting yesterday that wound up a two-day gathering of AFL team officials.

GUEST SCORES ACE AT MEADOW CLUB

Richard Walters, president of Diamond National, scored a hole-in-one at the 151-yard eighth hole at the Meadow Club last Wednesday.

Walters, who was a guest of club member Frank Paganini of Ross, used a seven iron to record the ace. Paganini is a former president of the Meadow Club.

Other witness was guest John Putnam.

Two Hits, No Win For Juan

It was tough to get even one of those customary smiles out of pitcher Juan Marichal today although the San Francisco Giants had opened their home stand with a rousing, 7-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Marichal, who pitched a no-hitter against the Houston Colts two week ago, was taken out of last night's game by Manager Alvin Dark in the eighth inning although he had struck out 13 batters up to that point and had a two-hitter in the works.

Dark, going by the percentage book, decided to replace the right-hander with southpaw Billy Hoeft, who picked up the win although pitching only one-third of a frame and committing an error that let the Reds tie the score.

"Nobody wants to be taken out of a game when they are going like that," Marichal said of Dark's strategy. Told that he had fanned 13 batters to match his career high, Juan just grunted and walked back to his locker.

Two homers by Willie McCovey and one apiece by Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda provided some of the Candlestick Park thunder.

McCovey brought his season total to 17 as he smashed a 455-foot two-run shot in the first inning off Bob Purkey then nailed left-handed relief pitcher Bill Henry with a solo shot in the eighth.

NO NO-HITTER

Vada Pinson accounted for both of Cincinnati's hits, ending Marichal's bid for a second no-hitter when he smashed a two-run homer in the sixth with two out. Pinson also tallied in the eighth on Hoeft's error after singling for his 16th straight game.

All of the Cincinnati runs were unearned.

Harvey Kuenn put the go ahead run on base in the eighth when he doubled after two were out. Ernie Bowman ran for him and came in with the tie-breaker on Chuck Hiller's one bagger.

Mays followed with a home run that ended Al Worthington's tenure and McCovey's homer ruined Henry's entrance. Don Larsen kept the Reds in check during the ninth inning.

100-1 Shot Winner Of Irish Sweeps

CURRAGH, Ireland (AP)—Ragusa today won the second running of the Irish Sweeps Derby in a sensational race that saw the scratching of odds-on favorite Relko minutes before the start.

Vic Mo Chroi was second and Tiger third.

Tarqogan was fourth in the field of 16 runners over the mile-and-a-half turf course, made soft by heavy rain.

Relko, winner of the English Derby by six lengths and odds-on favorite today, was withdrawn at the starting post because he was found to be lame.

Ragusa was a 100-1 long shot, Vic Mo Chroi was 28-1 and Tiger was 18-1.

Ragusa, third in the English Derby and nine lengths behind winner Relko, was ridden by Garnet Bougoure.

The winner, owned by J. R. Mullion and trained in Ireland by Paddy Prendergast, won the first prize of $137,625.

Four Top Notch Games Set In Marin Circuit Tomorrow

SIDELINES

By ED RANDOL

Wiser Man Than Solomon Needed To Settle Track, Field Troubles

RANDOL

It would take a wiser man than King Solomon to resolve the troubles that beset the track and field athletes of the United States. And for my money, General Douglas MacArthur is no Solomon, not even junior grade.

Old Mac may or may not be your idea of a hero. There is no questioning the fact that he has jammed a lot of living into his years. But I keep remembering that most of those years were in the military, and the years since have been with one of our large corporations.

As with all issues, the pendulum swings back and forth many times before it settles into a middle position. You can find right and wrong in the stands of both the Amateur Athletic Union and the U. S. Track and Field Federation in their jurisdictional dispute over which should control the destinies of our cinder stars.

So far, General MacArthur has slapped first one wrist and then the other in an attempt to mediate the squabble. The flurry of publicity attendant upon each slap causes the victim or the villain to pull in his horns for fear an avalanche of sentiment may give his opponent all the trumps.

MILITARY discipline would be a fine thing in a real bloody battle, but this squabble is actually more like a mountain feud than a war. MacArthur can give all the orders he wants, but it won't cure the breach between the two bodies. It's going to take a politician or a minister to cure this one.

Religion? Nope. That's a figure of speech. Seems to me, the answer lies somewhere between the arguments of the two groups, and it will take a wedding of the Martins and the Coys to bring about a lasting peace.

As far as the average track and field fan is concerned he couldn't care less whether the AAU or the USTFF decides who shall or who shall not run around in his underwear. He wants to see a good performance and an all-out effort, and doesn't care if the man is in or out of college.

AND THEN it comes to international competition, the track and field filbert wants his country to win if possible, but has the greatest admiration for the fine efforts of ANY competitor, regardless of nationality, race or religion. And this goes for the competitors, too.

Anyone who attended the USSR-USA meet at Palo Alto last year would have no fear of war between the two countries if international relations were left in the hands of the athletes themselves. Genuine respect and admiration was the byword.

Similarly, anyone who was in the jam-packed Cow Palace last winter to see the first big Bay Area Invitational meeting of track stars from all over the country didn't give a hoot if the man represented college, military, or country. Nobody "won" but the spectators, really.

MAYBE GENERAL MacArthur can do the job. Maybe not. All I know is that someone has to take charge mighty quick or the up-coming renewal of the Russian-American competition is going to fall flat on its face.

And beyond jurisdiction lies two other fearsome spectres. One is the ever-present problem of when does an amateur become a professional. The other is the smoldering racial issues being stirred up by some well-intentioned but misguided individuals.

Two Undefeated Clubs Collide In San Anselmo

There will be top-notch baseball action from Mill Valley to Novato tomorrow when the second round games of the Marin Semi-Pro Baseball League get underway.

San Anselmo's Memorial Park will be the scene of battle between two first round winners, the San Anselmo Merchants and the Dons of Marin. Starting on the mound for the Merchants will be either Dan Burke or Tim Furlong facing the Dons' Steve Miller, a right hander.

Other games tomorrow will find Billings Hutchison Builders (1-0) opposing the nine from the Presidio of San Francisco (0-1) at San Rafael's Albert Field; Bermuda Palms (0-1) taking on the Novato Merchants (1-0) at Novato High School's diamond, and the Mill Valley Merchants (0-1) tangling with Ongaro Plumbers (0-1) at Project 17 in Mill Valley.

All games will start at 1:30 p.m.

Hurling for the Builders, winners of the first San Rafael Invitational Semi-Pro Baseball tournament last month, will be Jerry Walters, former pitcher for the Cleveland Indians. His opposing moundsman will be southpaw Al Cutler who suffered the opening game loss for Presidio.

NOVATO ACE

Rich Pozzi, Novato ace, will try for his second victory in a row when he takes the hill against either Rich Cooney or Art Poole of the Bermuda nine.

Mill Valley manager Bob Selna announced his starting pitcher as Fred Thurman. He will be trying to outhurl the Plumbers' Rich Brear.

Roster deadline, according to league rules, is 12 o'clock tonight. Managers must have their rosters turned into Commissioner Frank Quinn by this time, the commissioner reported.

Pro Football Trades 50 Pct. Of 1962 Pace

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League owners are playing it close to the vest in the player mart with trading off almost 50 per cent from last year's pace.

At the end of June, the clubs had made only 12 deals involving 21 players in 1963 as compared to 20 trades involving 39 players a year ago, the NFL pointed out today.

One reason for the caution could be the fact that trades often have resulted in championship clubs to the embarrassment of the team that let the players go. In the last five years, the 10 conference champions (five in each conference) have averaged 11.6 players each acquired through trading, or about one-third of the squad.

The 1962 New York Giants, for instance, had 15 players or nearly half the active roster made up of players picked up in trades.

The Eastern Conference teams have been much busier than the Western Conference in the trade market with Dallas and Cleveland the most active. In fact, the seven Western teams have acquired a total of only five players in trades as compared to 16 by the Eastern teams.

Dallas picked up veteran guard Jim Ray Smith from Cleveland, defensive back Jim Ridlon from San Francisco and offensive end Hugh McInnis from St. Louis. In return the Cowboys gave up offensive tackle Monte Clark and defensive tackle Ken Frost to Cleveland, lineback Mike Dowdle to San Francisco and quarterback Buddy Humphrey to St. Louis.

In addition to their business with Dallas, the Browns in their "new deal" under Blanton Collier loaded up with fullbacks Mel Triplett from Minnesota and Ken Webb from Detroit. They sent defensive tackle Floyd Peters to Detroit and offensive end Leon Clarke to Minnesota.

Other active traders were Philadelphia, New York and St. Louis. Baltimore was the only club that had not made a deal.

DIPSEA RACE SCHEDULED FOR AUG. 25

The 1963 running of the famed Dipsea seven-mile endurance race over the hills of Mill Valley to Stinson Beach will be on Aug. 25, it was announced today.

Date was set by the Pacific Assn. of the AAU which is sanctioning the race that has drawn entrants from all over the world in past years. Participants must be members of the AAU before running in the event.

Applications are available from the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 30, Mill Valley, and from the M.V. Chamber of Commerce office at 85 Throckmorton Avenue.

The Dipsea this year will be sponsored by the Mill Valley Jaycees, taking over sponsorship from the South of Market Street Boys Club of San Francisco.

'Home Run' Baker Is Dead At 77

TRAPPE, Md. (AP) — John Franklin "Home Run" Baker, whose batting exploits of half a century ago won him a place in baseball's Hall of Fame, died yesterday at his home.

The 77-year-old former star of the Philadelphia Athletics and New York Yankees suffered a stroke about two weeks ago.

Baker won his nickname in the 1911 World Series, when he won the second game for the Athletics with a two-run, six-inning homer off Rube Marquard of the New York Giants and tied the score at 1-1 in the ninth inning of the third game with a homer off Christy Mathewson.

ANNUAL CONTEST ON TELEVISION

East Slim Choice Tonight In All-America Grid Tilt

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The aerial-minded East goes against the power-loaded, ground hugging West tonight in the third annual All-America football game.

The East, on the strength of a heavier line and the Rose Bowl pass-catch team of Ron VanderKelen and Pat Richter, from Wisconsin was picked by some observers as the slight favorite.

The West was not worried, however. It had a couple of great running backs in Iowa State's Dave Hoppmann, who led the nation in total yards gained in 1961, and Kermit Alexander, one of UCLA's best all-around backs, who will play for the San Francisco 49'ers this season.

The VanderKelen - Richter duo nearly upset unbeaten Southern California in the Rose Bowl last New Year's Day. Bill Nelsen of Southern Cal will call signals for the West.

The East line, averaging 245 pounds, includes Michigan State's Dave Behrman, a 265-pound guard. Rounding out the line, in addition to Richter, are: Bob Vogel and Daryl Sanders, an Ohio State pair weighing more than 500 pounds together center Dennis Gaubatz of Louisiana State, 220; tackle Art Gregory of Duke, 220, and end Tom Hutchinson of Kentucky, 200.

Starting with VanderKelen in the backfield will be John Mackey of Syracuse, Billy Gambrell of South Carolina and George Saimes of Michigan State.

The West's starting backfield will comprise Nelsen, Alexander, Ronnie Goodwin of Baylor and Bill Thornton of Nebraska. Hoppmann is slated for considerable action.

West coach John McKay of Southern Cal nominated this starting line: ends, Hugh Campbell of Washington State and Conrad Hitchler of Missouri; tackles, Ron Snidow of Oregon and Bobby Lee Bell of Minnesota; guards, Dwain Carlson of Nebraska and Tom Hertz of Missouri and center Jerry Hopkins of Texas A&M.

Wisconsin's Milt Bruhn is coaching the East.

The game, sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association and the Buffalo Evening News, will be televised nationally (ABC) beginning at 10 o'clock PDT. A crowd of 30,000 is expected in War Memorial Stadium.

San Rafael Driver 5th At Petaluma

San Rafael's Jack Dempsey hasn't won a main event at the NASCAR-sanctioned stock car races at the Petaluma Fairgrounds, but he ranks fifth in the overall point standings.

In statistics released today, Dempsey stands fifth with 120 points, 46 points behind the leader, Winn Beaver of Santa Rosa.

The other two San Rafael drivers who make the Petaluma races a regular Saturday night habit, Chuck Louwaert and Butch Buzzard, are ranked 18th and 19th, respectively.

All three San Rafael drivers won't be bucking the jinx tonight when they try and qualify for the main event. If they make it, the jinx that no previous main event winner repeats won't effect them.

Dempsey has finished the main event as high as ninth. The San Rafael racer, who's been coming along, though, has been Louwaert who finished fifth last week and also placed well in the preliminary races.

Tonight's time trials begin at 7 o'clock, while the first heat gets underway at 8.

San Jose's Dick Larrimore, who ranks sixth in the point standings, set the track record last week with a 17:34 clocking around the quarter mile track.

Pope Paul To Keep Working For Unity

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The remarkable warm-up in Catholic-Protestant relations which began under Pope John XXIII will continue under Pope Paul VI.

That is the expectation voiced by Protestant leaders who regard the new Pope as a progressive, open-minded man, sincerely anxious to heal divisions in the Christian family.

The election of Milan's liberal archbishop to the papal throne ended a period of anxious suspense for Protestants. Not since the reformation had they awaited the outcome of a conclave with such prayerful concern. They feared that a deadlock might lead to election of a compromise Pope who would be lukewarm or indifferent toward Pope John's mighty efforts to "renew" the Catholic church and reunite the Christian family.

Rev. Stanley L. Stuber of Jefferson City, Mo., an official Protestant observer at the Second Vatican Council, said: "I feel that we can look forward to most fruitful and cordial relationships under his reign."

Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, president of the Protestant council of New York City, said:

"To a degree unprecedented in history, Protestants have been praying to almighty God for the guidance of His Holy Spirit in the College of Cardinals as they chose a successor to that noble man, Pope John XXIII.

"With a new sense of fellow feeling and concern for the future of the Roman Catholic Church, we are grateful for the news of the election of Cardinal Montini, who is reportedly devoted to the same progressive and inclusive Christian purpose."

Rt. Rev. William F. Creighton, Episcopal bishop of Washington, D.C., said non-Roman Christians "are gratified that the new Pope is one who can be expected to continue the great work which Pope John began in the Ecumenical Council."

Rev. Carl F. H. Henry, editor of Christianity Today magazine, said evangelical Protestants "will welcome every indication by Pope Paul VI that a new era of Catholic-Protestant good will is to be carried forward."

Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles said he was hopeful that Pope Paul VI would display the same "spirit of love and tolerance so ably preached and practiced by his predecessor." If so, said the Methodist leader, "all of Christendom may come into closer unity."

There were similar comments from many other Protestant leaders in the United States and other countries.

Protestant leaders considered it a foregone conclusion that Pope Paul would act promptly to reconvene the Second Vatican Council, which was automatically suspended by the death of Pope John.

They also were convinced, by his past record and recent utterances, that the new Pope would seek the same basic goals of "renewal" and "updating" of the church that were so dear to the heart of his predecessor.

Some thought that Pope Paul VI, being younger, more intense and less patient of delay and obstruction, might move even more vigorously than Pope John XXIII in pressing for far-reaching reforms.

During the opening session of the Vatican Council last fall, Cardinal Montini was unmistakeably identified with the "liberal" bishops. He backed a liturgical reform plan which would permit use of modern languages rather than Latin in some portions of the Mass. And he spoke up strongly for modernization of the church's administrative structure, to give more authority and autonomy to bishops. He sharply criticized conservative members of the Roman Curia for trying to sidetrack the reform movement initiated by Pope John XXIII.

Two weeks ago, at a public memorial church for the late Pope, Cardinal Montini urged the Catholic church "not only to remember but to follow" the path which John XXIII "blazed with such boldness." He warned specifically against any turning back from the spirit of "ecumenicism" or Christian unity.

These were not new sentiments for Cardinal Montini. Five years before Pope John called the vatican council, he publicly rebuked Catholics who feel that orthodoxy consists of "using truth as a hammer against others."

"We must not only nourish an immense feeling of charity towards our brothers who have wandered astray," he said. "We must also learn something from them."

In January, 1962, he said in a pastoral letter to his archdiocese:

"Our spiritual attitude toward non-Catholics must chage. We must no longer consider them foreign enemies, but brothers who have been painfully detached from the life tree of the one and only true Church of Christ."

He voiced hope that "some new and great event" may occur to heal "this sad state of schism among Christians."

Cardinal Number May Climb To 100

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI is likely to increase the number of cardinals to more than 100 early in his reign. There are 81 "princes of the church" now.

The far-flung committments of the Catholic church and the increasing need for top-level men to represent its government abroad were expected to lead the new Pope to raise the number of cardinals to a new high, just as Pope John XXIII did.

To do this, Pope Paul is expected to call a consistory for the creation of cardinals early in his pontificate.

The Sacred College of cardinals is a body of priests of outstanding learning, piety, judgment and ability who are chosen by the Pope to serve as his assistant and advisors in the governing of the church.

Pope John XXIII held five consistories for the creation of new cardinals during his reign. Each time, he raised the membership in the college to a new all-time high.

Pope John's first consistory for the creation of cardinals came shortly after the beginning of his pontificate, on Dec. 15, 1958. At that time, death had depleted the ranks of cardinals to 51 in number.

John named 23 new cardinals, raising the strength of the sacred college to 74.

Pope John, in subsequent consistories appointed eight cardinals on Dec. 16, 1959, seven cardinals on March 28, 1960, four cardinals on Jan. 16, 1961, and appointed 10 more cardinals on March 19, 1962.

A number of cardinals died in the meantime, so that the 1962 consistory brought total membership to 87.

In the 1960 consistory John also appointed three other cardinals "in pecture" (in the breast). Their names never were revealed, and as a result the three never counted in the total membership of the college.

Paul's First Words Offer Prayer For Peace

(Editor's Note: United Press International has supplied the text of Pope Paul VI's statement of last Saturday.)

There is no lack of encouraging signs coming to us from men of good will. We greatly thank the Lord for this, while we offer them all our serene but firm collaboration for the maintenance of the great gift of peace in the world.

Our pontifical service intends to continue with full dedication the great work started with so much hope and with happy omens by our predecessor John XXIII; the fulfillment of that "ut unum sint" (so that they may be one), so greatly expected by all, and for which he offered his life.

The common aspiration to restore the unity painfully broken in the past will find in us an echo of fervent will and moved prayer, in the consciousness of the task entrusted to us by Jesus: "Simon, Simon . . I have prayed for thee, that thy faith may not fail and do thou strengthen thy brethren" (Luke 22, 31-32).

We are opening our arms to all those who take pride in the name of Christ. We are calling them with the sweet name of brothers and let them know that they will find in us constant understanding and benevolence; they will find in Rome the Father's home, which makes sublime and enriches with new splendor the treasures of their history, of their cultural heritage, of their spiritual heritage.

Venerable brothers and beloved children, the vastness of the work awaiting our poor forces is such as to awe the humble priest called to the height of the supreme keys but we will devote to it our prayer as well as our daily effort. We however need your collaboration and your invocation. Let this invocation rise unceasingly to God "in fragrant odor" for the pastor of the universal church.

For this a touched and grateful thought goes to all the children of the Catholic church who are giving to the world the testimony of their faith, the spectacle of their union, the regal splendor of their dignity, because "the disciples of Christ —as Clement of Alexandria says . . . "are kings by virtue of Christ King."

We salute first of all the very worthy members of the Sacred College who have shared with us the trepidation and the prayers of these days of waiting. We express our particular benevolence to the venerable brothers in the episcopate of the Orient and of the West, who in all continents "on behalf of Christ, therefore, we are acting as ambassadors, God, as it were, appealing through us" and we already savour the happiness of embracing them all in the Second Session of the Ecumenical Council.

We especially like to express our esteem for the Roman Curia, whose task, so full of honors and responsibilities, is to lend its close collaboration to the Vicar of Christ. We are certain that its very worthy work will be of valid help to us, because we have known directly for a long time its diligence, the sense of the church," the caution in its action, and especially we have appreciated it, along with all the bishops, in the preparatory stage and in the celebrartion of the Ecumenical Council Vatican II.

We address ourselves with paternal spirit to the parish priests, the priests, the religious who, tirelessly and silently, often without help in their solitude, engage their lives for the extension of the reign of God on earth: nor do we want to forget the souls consecrated to God in prayers and in multiform active charity.

At the outset of the pontifical office which is entrusted to the successor of St. Peter in his capacity as Bishop of Rome, we cannot help addressing ourselves with an affectionate embrace to the beloved children of the Rome diocese who have so vigorously backed the pastoral work of our predecessor. We firmly believe that they, by responding with charity to our charity, will continue to provide happy fruits of virtue, because the eyes of Catholics all around the world are fixed on them as they are closer to the chair of Peter.

Touched by the sweetness of remembrances, we send a salute full of very special affection to the beloved children of the Milan archdiocese whom in the past few years we loved so much and from whom we have received so many consolations, as from very loving children. Thus the thought also goes to our beloved native diocese with the wish that it may always remain faithful to the gospel of our Lord, to everything that gives honor, grace and nobility also in the human relations of life.

In particular, we want the brothers and children of those regions where the church is prevented from using its rights to feel close to us. They have been called to participate more closely in the Cross of Christ, which will be followed, we are sure, by the radiant dawn of resurrection. They will then be able finally to return to the full practice of their pastoral ministry which, by its institution, is meant to benefit not only single souls but also the nations in which it is exercised.

It is additionally dear to us to encourage and bless with full heart the beloved missionaries, pupils of our eyes, who in all continents, in the outposts of the church, spread the gospel of Jesus. May they always glorify themselves in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, enduring with love possible anxieties and trials. They must be certain that the help of God will never fail those who live and work only for Him.

We address ourselves once more with particular praise to the members of the Catholic Action, who help the ecclesiastical hierarchy to the apostolate and to all those who work in the various organizations of national and international character.

We then embrace with paternal charity all those who suffer: the sick, the poor, the prisoners, the exiled, the refugees.

Finally, we salute all our children in Christ, among whom we especially like to remember the bold and generous youth in which rests the certain hope for a better future, innocent infancy, pure and simple souls, the humble as well as the great on earth; all artisans and workers whose labors—often grave and heavy—we know and appreciate; men of culture and study; teachers and scientists, newspapermen, politicians and heads of state, praying that all of them, each one from his post of responsibility, may give his contribution to the construction of an order increasingly just in its principles, more effective in the application of the laws, healthier in private and public morals, more willing in the defense of peace.

May a great flame of faith and love igniting all men of good will pass over the whole world, may it illuminate the road of reciprocal collaboration, and may it draw down mankind, now and ever, the abundance of divine gifts, the strength itself of God, without whose help nothing is valid, nothing is sanctified.

On the point of starting our grave ministry, we are sustained by the words of Christ filled with comfort, with which He promised to Peter and to his successors to stay with the church "unto the consummation of the centuries," we are sustained by the material protection of the blessed Virgin Mary, mother of God and our mother, to whom we entrust as of now our pontificate, and along with by the help and the prayer of the Apostles Peter and Paul and as a guarantee for this celestial assistance and as happy encouragement for the good energies spread around the world, it is dear to us to impart, as prime sign of our paternal benevolence, to you, venerable brothers and beloved children, the Apostolic blessing.

In the name of God.
Let us proceed in peace.

THE STAR OF OUR SHOW is a secluded 3 bedroom, 2 bath house that has a tropical plant solarium entry with hibiscus and orchids in bloom—interior rock walled with a raised hearth fireplace to match — a Roman glass walled bath with sliding doors to its own delightful (drying) patio—a master bedroom with grass cloth walls that has its own private entry to the enclosed yard with beautifully landscaped pool, with a tropical flowing fountain, rock garden fish pond! It's also a home that thinks domesticity—one with a (kitchen of tomorrow) that incidentally has a pantry larger than most bedrooms! Highway 101 Bisects San Rafael's Business District

Looking south over the main business district of San Rafael, Highway 101 cuts a clear path through the heart of the city, making an almost perfect inverted S form.

Except for the hills on the north and south sides of the main business district, trees are only visable in the bottom left quarter of the picture. Where businesses and industries are most highly concentrated, the welcome relief to concrete and wood is almost non-existent.

Along Fourth Street, which cuts horizontally across the town, the two largest groups of buildings are the county courthouse and Macy's, with a large herringbone pattern parking lot behind. Further west on Fourth Street, and clearly defined by its white roof is the tallest office building in San Rafael now under construction by Kaehler-Farrer Development Inc.

Other recognizable landmarks are the baseball diamonds and playground of Albert Field in the center of the picture and to the left, the baseball field adjacent to Davidson School. Next to the highway, the empty sidings and tracks of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad can be traced north as it seems destined to converge with Lincoln Avenue.

Few cars are on city streets and parking lots are vacant, an unusual situation in San Rafael which can be explained by the fact that the picture was taken on Memorial Day. (Aero Photographers Inc. photo)

It's Fair & Flower Time In Marin

Dominican College— A Family Home To All The Redwoods

Three types of the redwood tree, including the rare Dawn Redwood, are growing in Marin on the campus of Dominican College in San Rafael.

The two species long familiar to Californians are the Coast Redwood and the California Big Tree.

The rare Dawn Redwood, scientifically termed Metasequoia Glypstostroboides, made its first appearance in our country in 1948. Until that time, most scientists had considered the current existence of Dawn Redwoods to be as unlikely as that of a giant dinosaur.

ONE OF THE most beautiful and interesting trees in the world, the Metasequoia or Dawn Redwood has only recently revealed its history.

In 1941 a Japanese paleobotanist found fossil cones attached to an elongated stalk on which there were no needles. He referred to them as the genus Metasequoia.

Similar fossils found gave evidence that these trees had existed in the Northern Hemisphere from 20 to 100 million years ago — but there were no known living examples.

Subsequently a forester in China found in his rice paddies a living but unfamiliar tree. It was an enormous one and was recognized by professors in Peking and Nanking as having the same leaf and cones that had earlier been found on the fossils.

THE SAME trees were soon found to be growing in other remote areas of China and became an interesting discovery for scientists who had believed this redwood to be extinct.

In 1948 a party of scientists and botanists made a trip to central China to study this living example of a tree which had been known only as a fossil. Dr. Ralph Chaney, a California authority of prehistoric plants who was a member of the group, described his vision of the gigantic tree recalling, "our hands upon its grey red-flecked bark, our eyes uplifted to the branches which rose nearly a hundred feet above. Here was a fossil come to life, a giant whose kind had

The Three Kinds Of Redwoods Are College Campus Neighbors

ONE OF the distinguishing characteristics of the Dawn Redwood is that it is deciduous and sheds its needles. One of the trees on the Dominican College campus can be seen at left in that winter state. In contrast, the Coast Redwood and the Giant Sequoia do not drop their needles annually. The Dawn needles also undergo a change in color from green to yellow to russet before they fall from the tree.

persisted out of the past to tell us the story of the earth millions of years before man came to live upon it."

The Metasequoia has peculiarities by which it can be recognized as distinct from the Coast Redwood.

A MAJOR characteristic of the Dawn Redwood is that it is deciduous while the Coast Redwood is evergreen and keeps its leaves for three or four years.

The Dawn pales from green to yellow and then takes on a russet color before its needles fall. Its branches ascend while those of the Coast turn slightly downward; Dawn needles are paired on the shoot and those of the Coast are alternate.

The "race" of Dawn Redwoods goes back to the Age of Reptiles, perhaps 100 million years ago when the Arctic was warm and balmy and when tropical seas covered California. In those remote times the Dawn flourished all over the northern hemisphere from Iceland to Siberia and from Alaska to New Jersey.

WHEN THE climate changed and the Arctic became cold, the trees began to migrate and began growing farther south. In our own time it was felt that they had disappeared entirely leaving only fossil traces of needles, stems, and cones, which were preserved in the rocks.

"It required," wrote Dr. Chaney, "perhaps 10 million years for the forest of Dawn Redwoods, birches, chestnuts, and oaks to move from Alaska into Oregon and California, from Siberia to Manchuria." The movement continued even into the Miocene time.

When the period of the now characteristic dry summer and winter rain of the West Coast came, the Dawn Redwood disappeared from North America and has since disappeared from Manchuria and Japan.

THE RETURN of the Dawn Redwoods to America is precious. Until 1940 there was no evidence that the Metasequoia existed more recently than 20 million years ago. Young seedlings that were sent from China by Dr. Chaney were guarded in greenhouses and nurtured with vitamins.

Two Dawn seedlings, two and three inches tall, were sent to Sister M. Bernadine, O.P., at Dominican by Dr. Chaney in 1948. Although kept indoors, one failed to survive the winter. However, Dr. Chaney replaced it with another seedling. They were 14 inches tall when transplanted into the campus soil alongside Meadowlands Dormitory, where they have flourished. "Strong, healthy and aristocratic" is the way Sister Bernadine describes them.

More recently Dominican was also presented two of the fossils showings the imprint of Dawn redwood needles. Age of the fossils, one from Oregon the other from British Columbia, has been estimated "conservatively" at from 20 to 60 million years. They will be placed on display in the Science Building.

ABOVE LEFT is a display of the needles of the three types of redwoods that are growing on the Dominican College campus in San Rafael. At lower left the Coast Redwood needles, at upper left those of the rare Dawn Redwood, and at lower right the Giant Sequoia's needles. The photo at right shows one of the 20 to 60-million-year-old fossils bearing the imprint of Dawn Redwood needles that were presented to Dominican by the University of California. (Independent-Journal photos)

DOMINICAN also claims an unusually beautiful example of the California Big Tree which has a perfect conical shape. In its native habitat, such a giant Sequoia frequently has its lower branches shaded by the other Big Trees and those branches die for want of sunlight. The Dominican tree, however, has always had its "own park" and the lower branches are full and sweep the ground.

Situated directly in front of Meadowlands, the Big Tree is significant to the college because of its connection to the de Young family whose summer home was once Meadowlands.

Mrs. Frances Woodhead, housemother in Fanjeaux dormitory, recalls the story of the tree when it was only in the neighborhood of eight of 10 feet tall. As a young girl, Frances Stewart Woodhead was a good friend of the de Young family.

"WE SAT for afternoon tea on the porch of Meadowlands and saw the lovely view of Mount Tamalpais."

But when the Big Tree was first planted in 1900, Mrs. de Young objected because she realized its size would eventually ruin the view of the mountain. Mrs. de Young was correct but the Big Tree, now in its 60s, is only a baby and gives no indication of ceasing to grow.

All three types of trees on the campus are objects of pride by Dominican sisters and students, and frequently are studied by visiting botanical groups.

IT IS STILL impossible to foresee what geological changes may take place in years to come but it is certain that Californians will always revere the trees which have been interesting and inspiring to so many.

Luther Burbank once described his feeling while viewing a redwood tree as "one of awe that grows day by day if you linger like a lost pygmy in the shadow of the giants."

Without a doubt, there is a universality in his response.

A SUMMIT MEETING of the people largely responsible for the appearance of the 1963 Marin Art and Garden Fair takes place even as the work continues. Left to right are Herman E. Hein, landscape architect and designer of the welcoming entrance for the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross where the 1963 fair opens Wednesday evening; Henry H. Cole, also a landscape architect and designer for this year's fair, and Marcelle B. McCoy, the fair manager. To add a slight embellishment to the center's new permanent entrance, flowers will be placed among the huge native serpentine rocks and in front of the laminated beam arches. (Photo by Ken Molino)

It's Everybody's Fair

When the Marin Art and Garden Fair opens on Wednesday, the eve of the Fourth of July, it will once again present a spectacular demonstration of community participation.

Virtually the entire Marin community plays a part — from Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross, who with her Art and Garden Center board puts on the fair for the county supervisors, to the toddlers who prevail on mommy or daddy to buy them a balloon, thereby boosting the Marin Zonta Club's annual scholarship grant to a worthy Marin school girl.

BOTH DIRECTLY and indirectly, thousands of Marinites will have had a hand in the 18th annual show opening which takes place Wednesday at 6 p.m. The next four days the gates will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Those who contribute to the success of the fair on the Marin Art and Garden Center grounds in Ross represent a vital cross-section of the kind of public-spirited people who help to keep Marin marvelous.

Esteemed artists such as Jose Moya del Pino and Lucienne Bloch have been working side by side with the young Sausalito strugglers whose talents and energies make the "art" section of the Marin Art and Garden Fair a blue ribbon winner among all of California's county fairs.

NURSERYMEN and landscape architects like Jim Eger and Phil Reedstrom, who don't "need" the publicity and money prizes their exhibits bring them, participate out of community spirit—have done so year after year. These men and "nurserywomen," too, like Lila Lillie, hoist plants and push sawdust just as the new and up-and-coming exhibitors are doing this weekend.

All work hard to achieve perfecttion in expressing the "Contemporary Moods" theme of this year's fair through their exhibits.

The overall design of the 1963 event is in the artistic hands of Henry H. Cole. As a landscape architect he serves the fair not only in a creative capacity, but works through-

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

How much do you really save when you purchase stereo Hi-Fi components from discounters? Experience over many years has shown that you usually spend more before you have satisfactory results with your overall system.

There are two main forms of discounters. First there is the Discount Store. This store usually gives the greatest discounts. They do not have demonstration facilities or service and testing facilities. They hire counter clerks with no technical experience with installation and servicing or operational know-how of the electronic components that they dispense over the counter. These merchandisers give you the items in factory sealed cartons, without any preliminary testing. When you purchase a component from one of these discount houses, you have no guarantee that the item will even operate when you get it home. Also, if it is defective, they will not accept it back for repair or replacement.

What are your chances of getting a component in a factory sealed carton that is operating perfectly? If you consider that most factories are on the East Coast, and that the component has travelled in a truck across 3,000 miles of country, you can understand that it is an easy possibility that a couple of parts may short together, or that a wire may come loose, or that an adjustment may change. Some of these changes may be minor and, without adequate testing by experienced personnel before selling, would go undetected. You may use your costly components for months or years with more distortion, noise, etc., than you should be getting from your unit. If, after you get it home it doesn't perform properly, or if it gets fuzzy or goes defective after a few weeks or months of use, you have no qualified person to turn to. You have the choice of carting the unit to the one factory warranty station in the area and waiting from two to six months until they can get to it for repair, or you can take it to a qualified service shop and pay from $15.00 to $40.00 for each unit for complete laboratory testing and repairs.

The second form of discounter is the store that has some service facilities, but poor demonstration facilities, and limited experience in custom type installations. They can only compete by offering their merchandise at lower prices. Again, you are the loser because you are not getting the most competent and experienced guidance to make your home music system the best your dollar can buy.

Everyone Gets Into The Fair Act

Dedicated Workers Are Key To Success Of Colorful Event

out the nine acres of grounds with construction and maintenance crews.

His goal is to produce a bright and lively yet spic and span setting for the cultural display.

EVERYBODY is pitching in during these hours just before the curtain rises. Fair manager Marcelle B. McCoy, working above and beyond the call of her managerial contract, is everywhere on the grounds. With hammer in hand, she puts up pre-opening signs and ribbons, and at the same time, in her cool demeanor gives assurance everywhere that the opening will produce perfection.

In past years, newcomers to Marin County attending their first Marin Art and Garden Fair have been startled as they approached the main entrance booths to buy their admission tickets. They've found themselves handing over their dollar for a ticket perhaps to their minister, their bank president, their dentist, plumber or even their next-door neighbor. The fair's ticket-selling traditionally has been handled as a community service by men and women volunteers who take on working shift assignments and give up their own Fourth of July weekend private pleasures.

The Rotary Club and Lions Club, both of San Anselmo, and the Kiwanis Club and Chi Omega Alumnae will this year again assume the important responsibility for handling the money which more than 35,000 visitors are expected to spend for tickets. Bank of Marin will serve as the "counting house," tallying and banking the receipts.

WE ALL have our image of what a Federal Bureau of Investigation agent is supposed to look like. Whatever that is, Marin County's resident FBI agent may be the fellow who will be smearing mustard on your hotdog if you stop for one at the booth operated by the Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints.

The church, like the scores of other service and youth organizations who operate booths, benefits by receiving a percentage of the sales.

In the main dining and food area of the fair there will be found men tending the kettles and kitchen ranges who, when at home, wouldn't try to boil an egg. The membership of the Ross Valley Players pitches in during the entire run of the fair to serve tens of thousands of orders of fried chicken and other eats.

Officers and directors of most of Marin's savings and loan companies deal during the fair in candied apples, watermelon slices, cakes and cookies. Several are already devoting themselves to night work — baking batches of cookies—which will be on sale.

COMMUNITY service alone is, of course, not enough to build and present a successful county fair. The bulk of the money premiums for winning exhibitors comes from Sacramento from state monies allocated for all county fairs. Except in special cases, the premium awards are derived from the state's share of wagers at California race tracks.

However, no matter how much money from no matter how many horse races, the Marin Art and Garden Fair is what it is largely because of the community support it receives from dedicated Marinites.

MANNING THE SKIP LOADER and participating actively in the clearing and cleaning of the grounds at the Marin Art and Garden Center is Henry H. Cole, landscape architect and designer of the 1963 Marin Art and Garden Fair which opens at the center Wednesday night. On hand to help Cole are Tom and Jim Sannar, seasonal workers at the center. (Photo by Ken Molino)

"CONTEMPORARY MOODS," the theme of the 1963 Marin Art and Garden Fair, is strikingly illustrated by this pair of "contemporary" Marin girls as they arrange modern decor in preparation for Wednesday night's fair-opening. At left is Penny Tilden Aspey, and working with her is Jacque Adams. Both are from San Rafael.

ABSTRACT DESIGNS become effective decorations in the talented hands of Sausalito artist Kenneth McCurdy, chairman of the art-in-action activities at the 1963 Marin Art and Garden Fair. Demonstrations by potters, silversmiths, other craftsmen and painters have been planned for the art area during this year's festival. (Photos by Ken Molino)

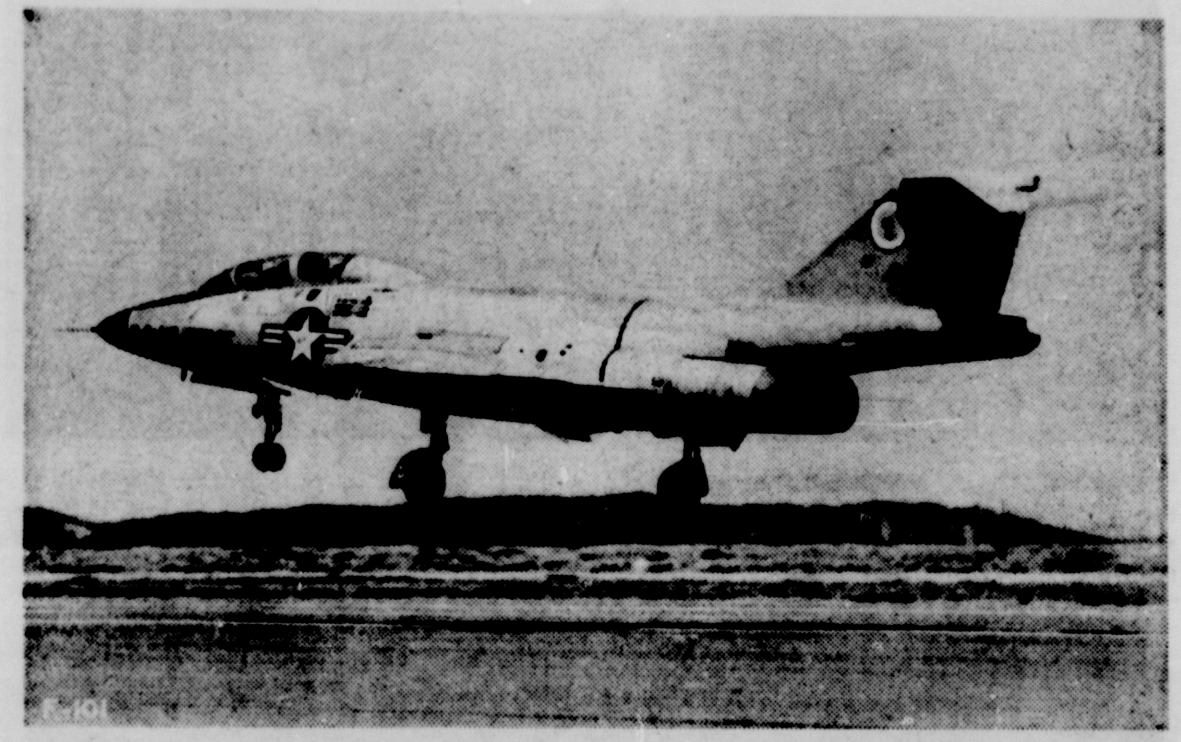
RADAR OBSERVER Lt. Charles Joseph Mundy of the 84th Fighter-Interceptor squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base checks standard operating procedures during a ground training session. The procedures must become reflex actions.

IN PREPARATION for a mission, Lieutenant Joe Mundy checks his instruments in the rear seat of an F-101. As radar observer, he must make a successful target interception and direct his pilot to the best position for a "kill."

No Joy Rides For Backseat-Driving Radar Observer

(Editor's Note: Last week the Marin Magazine reported on how the North American Air Defense Command maintains a gigantic and intricate shield to defend the continent against surprise attack. Here the magazine gives its readers a more intimate picture of how the system functions by telling the story of one of the dedicated men responsible for that shield—radar observer Lt. Joe Mundy of Hamilton Air Force Base.)



ROARING OFF THE runway at Hamilton Base, an F-101 fighter-interceptor begins a mission. Aboard the plane are pilot, radar observer and crew, all trained specialists in intercepting, identifying and destroying enemy aircraft.

"Airborne attack director?"

"Yes," Lt. Joe Mundy of Hamilton Air Force Base confirmed. "That's the term. But sometimes a radar observer feels more like a backseat driver."

A flight is no "joy ride" for the radar observer (R/O), the lieutenant explained. From his post at the rear seat of the supersonic F-101 fighter-interceptor he is kept busy with a multitude of duties.

Of paramount importance is his task of directing his pilot to the interception of a fast-moving target. And it is then, for a brief, vital period, that the R/O is in command of the intercept. And he must find the target.

Second Lt. Charles Joseph Mundy is a native of Scarbro, W. Va., 26 years old, married, and father of two sons.

HE BEARS little resemblance to the public image of a flier that developed during World War II and which is kept alive by the old movies shown on television.

New as R/Os go with about 400 mission hours to his credit, he is quiet, well-trained and acutely conscious of his heavy responsibility. And he is very human.

"In the back seat," he philosophized, "if everything is going fine, you're on top of the world. But if you miss an intercept, you just don't feel good—PERIOD."

His decisions in the back seat might save an American city from being destroyed by an enemy nuclear bombing.

HOW DID Joe acquire this responsibility?

His career in the Air Force began more than eight years ago when he enlisted after graduation from Oak Hill High School in West Virginia.

Becoming an aircraft control and warning operator, he served in the Carolinas, Texas, Japan and Korea. Late in 1960, S/Sgt. Mundy was accepted for Officer Candidate School at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex.

His wife, Zelda, and two sons, Joe Jr. and Ricky, were in the audience as Joe received his gold bars in June, 1961.

That wasn't the end of his schooling.

HE QUALIFIED as an Air Force navigator after 10 months training at Harlingen Air Force Base, Tex.

"We had lots of math along with all the navigation," reported Mundy, "but we were all looking forward to something bigger than the T-29."

He chose the Air Defense Command for duty and left for radar observer training at James Connally Air Force Base, still in the Lone Star state.

Joe has a vivid recollection of his first ride in a T-33 jet trainer. "That pilot wrung us out with rolls, loops, the split S and everything else he could remember."

For him, some of the courses in the six-month curriculum were new. Radar was expected, but there were also hydraulics, aircraft systems, engines, electronics and aircraft recognition.

ALTHOUGH Mundy had a good background of aircraft control and warning, the entire concept of airborne intercept was new, too—especially intercept conversion.

There was a "washout" rate of about 20 per cent in each phase of training.

Joe remembered, "A man with a Ph.D. in electronics might be washed out for lots of reasons, or another, who really liked to fly, couldn't master the academic side."

He believes the most difficult subject was intercept tactics. "It still is," he added, smiling.

Three weeks before graduation at Waco, the R/O students were allowed to pick an aircraft assignment — either RC-121s or F-101s.

CHOOSING THE F-101, Joe was assigned to Hamilton Air Force Base and the 83rd Fighter-Interceptor Squadron. He was reassigned to the 84th squadron, also at Hamilton, when the 83rd began deactivating last May.

It was "something bigger" for Joe.

What was most noticeable in the transition to the F-101?

"Getting used to the aircraft," Mundy said, "and working with pilots, instead of for them, as we did at school."

Training within the squadron takes a big chunk of hours from his duty time and a so-called work week might run 90 hours.

Any gripes?

"NATURALLY," declared Joe, "but no major ones."

There is a shortage of R/Os. To keep a sharp edge on their proficiency, the men of the 84th train—and train—and train.

No one wants to add to the shortage.

Flying safety is stressed again and again in training. Crew members have been taught to watch for signs of fatigue.

Maintenance, shop and weather men are often praised by crews. The success of each mission depends on operational capabilty of squadron aircraft.

ARE MISSIONS ever routine? Ask Joe Mundy.

"Too many variables for one mission to be like a previous one—something is always different," he replies, without a pause.

And, with that remark, the slender, crew-cut R/O headed for the briefing room.

It was about an hour before the scheduled mission take-off. One of the 84th FIS flight commanders waited till everyone was seated, then briefed the crews on the mechanics of the mission, the weather and other relevant data.

THERE WAS no daydreaming or looking out the window.

"Today will be a low-level mission," said the flight commander. "You'll be working with 'Ring Dove' control. The target will be a T-33 over water," he adds, breaking off sharply.

After the briefing, there was a 20-minute gap before Mundy and his pilot, Capt. O. D. Robertson, were due at their aircraft.

The two men crossed the hall and entered the personal equipment section. There they picked up parachutes, helmets, survival gear and a strange device called NADAR, which records an intercept.

Next came "preflighting." Then, with tension building up, they moved on to the aircraft to await "scramble" instructions from the Combat Alert Center.

A LIGHT flashed—Mundy got the "scramble info"—and very shortly, the F-101 was airborne.

Contact was established wth "Ring Dove" control. The controller advised them to follow "Dollie" or Data Link. The pilot obeyed, setting his course, altitude and speed to conform with information from instruments located on his panel.

Using "Dollie," Captain Robertson proceeded toward the intercept without voice control. They were vectored out toward the target at cruise altitude.

The waiting was over for Joe Mundy.

He watched his instruments as the "Ring Dove" controller paired his F-101 against the target, giving speed, combat altitude and attack heading.

NOW IT was time to go low. "Descend to 1,000 feet," the cockpit instruments showed.

All Joe Mundy's training had been pointed at these few brief seconds. And they were ticking away rapidly while he searched the scope for a very small target in a very large area.

His Task Is To Intercept

He had to locate it in a minimum amount of time while his jet bored thundering holes in the clouds.

Still another obstacle to overcome was "sea-clutter" which causes the radar to give sub-standard performance at low altitude.

"EACH MISSION is different," Joe said. "They sometimes sound alike but they are influenced by too many variables."

The persistent training paid off. Joe got a contact on the target — a "JUDY." Not so simply translated, that means he takes control of the intercept. He must now direct the pilot to the most advantageous position for the most effective kill.

As they arrived at the second offset point, Mundy was certain he had the target. He told the pilot to "fly the dot."

Captain Robertson completed the attack and launched the armament. But the mission was far from finished.

THE AIR CREW returned to Hamilton where they first held a very thorough "debriefing" mission with maintenance personnel. They talk about the performance of the aircraft, radar, autopilot, navigational aids and communications—and many other topics.

Afterward, Mundy and Robertson went to the 84th FIS and debriefed the mission with the weapons training officer. He was interested in obstacles met and how they had been overcome. He listened.

Next it was across the hall for a look at the NADAR recording of the intercept and its evaluation. Then, a final debriefing with the "Ring Dove" controller.

Mundy and Robertson were pleased with the results of the mission. This one was history.

IT HAD BEEN four hours since they heard the briefing officer give the target. The actual flying time on the mission was just under an hour and a half.

There is no pure relaxation for these men. There will be more training—and missions. Alerts are a normal way of life for Joe Mundy and his companions in the Air Defense Command.

Rewarding work?

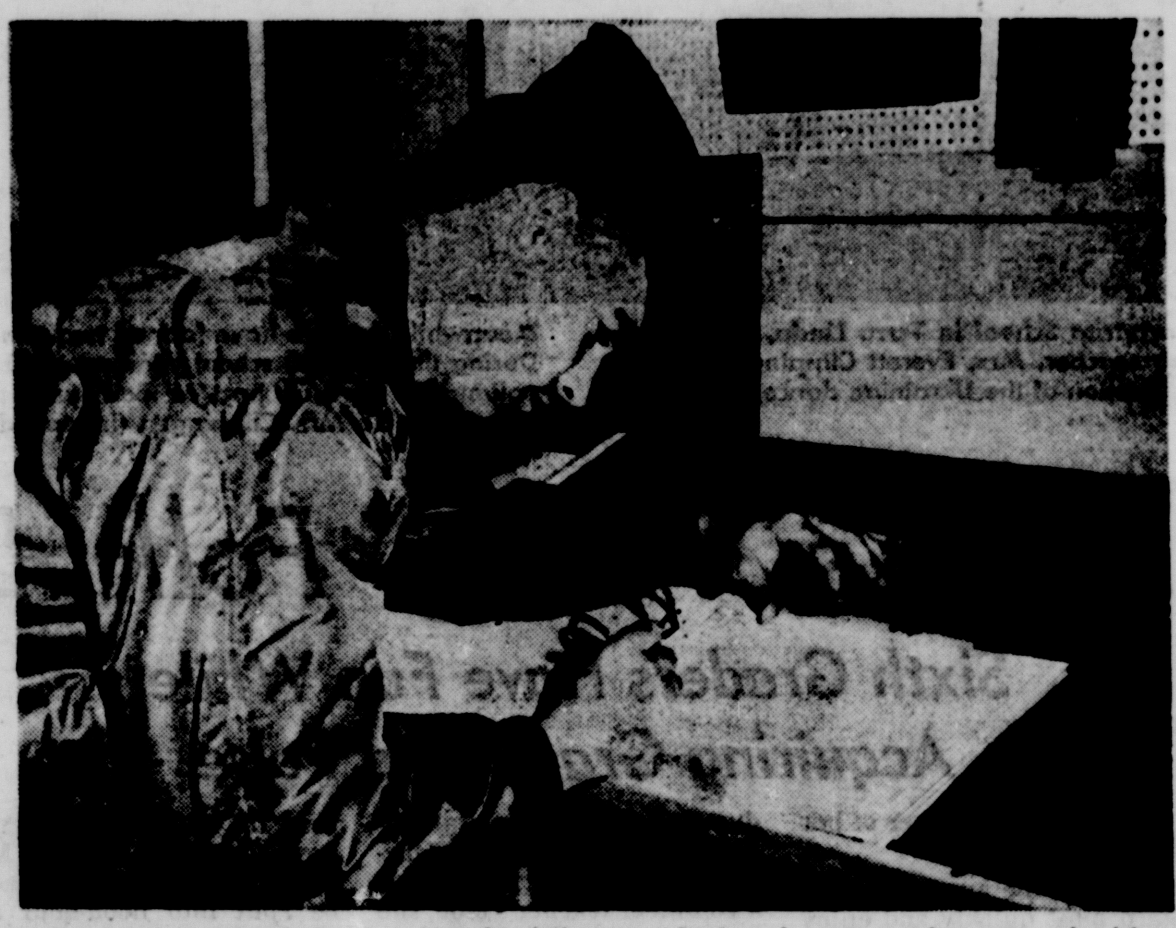
"It's not something you think about all the time," said Joe. "I'm doing what I want to do and the rewards are there every day."

THAT'S HOW Lieutenant Joseph Mundy feels about being a radar observer in an F-101 fighter-interceptor.

As Joe turned to leave the flight line building, he looked at the 84th FIS bulletin board. Among the notices, he spotted the new training schedule.

The next morning, he would report for "Water Survival Training."

HEADED FOR HOME at Hamilton Air Force Base are these 84th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron planes and crews as they pass over the Golden Gate Bridge. It is these all-weather, supersonic F-101 aircraft that defend Bay Area cities.



BACK AT HAMILTON, Lt. Joe Mundy still hasn't completed his mission. "Debriefing" is important. So the radar observer logs the intercept and records pertinent weather and other data. Prior discussions had been held with pilot and crew and with maintenance men and the weapons training officer.

AS THE FINAL PHASE of the intercept mission comes the NADAR evaluation. Capt. Edward A. Osuchowski of the 84th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron is showing Lieutenant Mundy what the pilot saw on his scope during the flight. With this, the "debriefing" is completed. (Official Air Force photos)

ON THE GROUNDS of Santa Margarita School in Terra Linda, sixth grade boys follow the example of their teacher, Mrs. Everett Clippinger, as they practice the steps of the freestyle portion of the Ukrainian dance, the Hopak. Meanwhile the girls have formed two semi-circles for their part in the dance. During the 1962-63 school year some 40 sixth graders at Santa Margarita voluntarily gave up part of their lunch period once a week to study folk dancing under Mrs. Clippinger. Terra Linda's Young Folk Dancers

Sixth Graders Have Fun While Acquiring Grace And Poise

In Terra Linda they begin their folk dancing young.

This past school year some 40 sixth grade students at Santa Margarita School participated in a volunteer, noon-hour program of folk dancing instruction taught once a week by Mrs. Everett "Skip" Clippinger, one of Marin County's most enthusiastic devotees of the hobby.

NOW, AS the Terra Linda Folk Dancers, these 11 and 12-year-olds are staging a series of summer performances which is already winning them the plaudits of the county's adult folk dancers.

Says Mrs. Clippinger of her young charges:

"This is the age when they learn most quickly and enjoy themselves the fullest. It is also a time when they gain the greatest personal benefit from such activity. Folk dancing keeps them graceful and mobile during their growing spurts, and it allows them open, unrestricted expressions in dance form."

Mrs. Clippinger first introduced Santa Margarita students to the fun of folk dancing three years ago when, as a volunteer teacher's aide, she brought a few of the dances to fourth and fifth graders during their physical education period.

SHE ALSO began the noon-hour instruction that year and extended it into Girl Scout activities.

It proved so popular that during the 1961-62 term more than 100 fifth and sixth grade boys signed up at Santa Margarita and the program had to be split into noon-hour and after-school, beginning and intermediate units.

This past year Mrs. Clippinger taught only sixth graders including the 40 "intermediates" who devoted part of their lunch periods to the dancing.

SOME 90 Santa Margarita sixth graders also enjoyed folk dancing under Mrs. Clippinger's supervision as part of their physical education instruction. Some of their dances from Latin America and Europe were coordinated with the same pupils' social studies curriculum.

The noon-hour, intermediate group launched a series of summer performances recently with a highly successful exhibition at the party of the Marin Whirl-Aways, adult folk-dancing enthusiasts.

Next will be an appearance Thursday at the Fourth of July celebration marking the anniversary of the Terra Linda Recreation Center.

Then on July 8 they will make another appearance before "home folk" as an added feature at a band concert at the Community Building in the recreation center.

Many of the youngsters, too, will join the adult dancers when folk dancers take over the outdoor stage at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross for two evenings of the 1963 Marin Art and Garden Fair—next Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. and again next Saturday during the same hours.

AND AGAIN on July 14 many of the Terra Linda boys and girls will be in the thick of things when folk dancers

"WHY DIDN'T MY CLEANER GET THE GREASE SPOTS OUT?"

There may be more than one sound reason. First, did you tell him about the spot and what caused it? Did you attempt to remove it yourself, first? Had it been in the fabric long? These questions have a real bearing on spot removal.

More spots than we realize are caused by oily-based foods, beauty creams, lubricating oils and greases. Today these oils and greases are not "just plain grease" anymore. Some are heavily loaded with pigments, dyes and resins. When the oils are removed, the staining agents may remain in the fabrics. If you have tried the home treatment with water, cleaning fluid or warm iron and blotting paper, you may have "set" the stain yourself.

The age of an oily-base spot is very important. Age gives the stain a chance to penetrate the fibers or the stain may oxidize into a permanent discoloration.

"Finger foods" such as we eat in our cars or at "cook-out" can bring a lot of grief. After such a social event, inspect your clothing carefully. If you detect a grease spot, take the fabric to your drycleaner before it ages or gets in contact with heat. He can remove the grease spot it he knows what it is and gets to it soon enough.

Folk Dancing Is Fun

Terra Linda Youngsters Share In Enjoyment Of The Hobby

from near and far stage their annual funfest on the College of Marin campus in Kentfield and in the San Rafael High School gymnasium.

Entitled "Fun in Marin on Bastille Day," the day-long dancing event will again be staged in two sessions, from 1:30 to 5 in the afternoon outdoors on the college lawn, and from 7:30 to 10:30 in the evening indoors in the high school gymnasium.

The event is annually one of Marin's most colorful fun festivals, with many of the dancers clad in authentic costumes of the countries from which the dances originated.

Those dances might range from the Russian prysiadkis to the Waltz Mazurka Violetta, with everyone joining in. And highlighting the program will be exhibitions by ethnic groups such as the Scottish Country Dancers and Parker Wong's Chinese Dance Group.

THE MARIN Dance Council and the several folk-dancing clubs in the county host the annual event.

Mrs. Clippinger is confident that her Terra Linda youngsters will acquit themselves well, even in this fast company.

They have progressed rapidly, she says, because they like folk dancing and have therefore tackled it with enthusiasm.

Typical of the Terra Linda students' reactions is that of Patty Gurin, who says: "I like the hard dances the best. The harder they are, the more challenge there is."

Schoolmate Karen Clippinger adds: "It refreshes me. It would seem like it would be tiring, but actually I feel more relaxed after our folk dancing."

THE BOYS, too, like the activity.

Exclaims Dick Watkinson: "It's fun. It keeps up your spirits.

"And I've learned a lot about handling the equipment such as the speaker, microphone and record player."

The boys take a special liking to the Russian dances with the arm positions on the chest and the vigorous prysiadkis.

One of them, Ricky Mulhaupt, asserts: "Folk dancing helps you in sports. It causes you to be able to get around faster and lighter as you learn to do the steps better."

Ricky should know. This spring he broke the school record for the running broad jump.

AS FOR THE instructor, Mrs. Clippinger says: "I enjoy their vigor and enthusiasm. They're learning at a tremendous pace for this age level."

She adds: "We dance to exciting music which I tape on my tape recorder, and we use maracas, castanets and our own voices when possible. This makes it all the more fun for the boys and girls."

Folk dancing is far from her only interest. She is a registered pharmacist and received her Bachelor of Science Degree at the University of Buffalo in New York.

She practiced pharmacy for five years in New York and Chicago and is licensed in California.

ANOTHER interest is languages—Latin, French and, more recently, Russian. She studied Russian for two years at College of Marin.

Of her folk dancing she says: "I have danced all my life."

She received formal training at the University of Chicago in "acrotheater" for four years and at the University of California in Los Angeles Dance Wing for a few years, learning both modern and primitive dancing.

At Acalanes Valley, Calif., she completed beginning and intermediate ballroom dancing courses. And for six years she has been folk dancing with the Marin Whirl-Aways under the supervision of instructors Joe and Marie Angeli.

IN ADDITION to her folk dancing instruction duties, Mrs. Clippinger takes three dancing classes a week herself—a modern dance course under Oeloel Braun, the Wednesday night gatherings of the Marin Whirl-Aways, and a Friday evening session in Balkan line dancing that is taught by Sandy Clemmer.

Her work with the Terra Linda children, however, remains her favorite activity.

"When I think of all the enjoyment I have received from folk dancing," she says, "I know that you can't begin too soon. I think what these boys and girls are learning right now is something that will stick with them throughout their lives."

WAVING A SCARF overhead, Mrs. Everett Clippinger led her young Terra Linda folk dancers through the movements of the Yugoslavian dance—Ersko Kolo. Of her hobby, Mrs. Clippinger says: "I've been dancing all my life." (Independent-Journal photo)

Case Of Compulsive Confessor Serves As Basis For Novel

By DON KEOWN

After crimes of violence, especially those accorded sensational newspaper coverage, it is not unusual for police to receive one or many confessions from cranks craving punishment, notoriety or both.

It is with one such compulsive confessor — "dingalings" they are called — that former Los Angeles newspaper editor Jackson Donahue deals in his second novel, "The Confessor."

Handsome, magnetic but psychotic, Brian Martin Sinclair is one of five men who confess the fatal beating of the beautiful wife of a noted scientist. The Houston, Tex., district attorney and police choose to believe his confession because he was, indeed, with the woman on the night of the murder.

To police psychiatrist Dr. Alden Breck it is apparent that the confession is false and that an innocent man is headed for the electric chair. He strives desperately to pierce the mystery of Sinclair's background and learn why the man is bent on self-destruction.

Donahue's writing has an uneven rhythm, especially in the early chapters, that makes for difficult reading. But if the reader persists, he is eventually rewarded with a smoother flow, and with some taut and dramatic material.

And Donahue turns a strong spotlight upon American trial procedures, the death penalty, race guilt and other social issues.

A less erratic, better-controlled presentation would have helped the novel. But Donahue has a powerful and meaningful story to tell. After some uneasy early moments, he eventually wins and holds the reader's attention. And he provokes some serious thinking upon some subjects in dire need of just that.

THE CONFESSOR by Jackson Donahue, World Publishing Co., 309 pages, $4.95.

BEST SPORTS STORIES 1963 edited by Irving T. Marsh and Edward Ehre, E. P. Dutton & Co., 336 pages, $4.50.

ONE OF THE ironies of journalism is the fact that some of the profession's most accomplished writers are regularly assigned to what is in reality one of the least significant, although by no means least interesting, news fields —the coverage of sports.

As a result, it sometimes seems that the newspapermen have done as much as the athletes themselves to promote sports to their tremendous popularity in this country.

"Best Sports Stories 1963" is the 19th collection in an annual series of what a panel of experts — this year John Chamberlain, John Hutchens and Quentin Reynolds — has selected as the finest newspaper and magazine sports writing of the year. There are, indeed, some gems.

Jack Murphy of the San Diego Union wrote the best news coverage story with a lively yarn on the seventh game of the 1962 World Series. Bob Addie of the Washington Post took best news-feature story honors with a tear-jerker about some blind youngsters and their baseball heroes. And Myron Cope had the top magazine story in a delightful piece he did for True magazine on colorful Casius Clay.

These are backed up by from one to a half dozen top-notch examples of fine writing in each of the major sports fields for a total of 48. The Bay Area is represented by a baseball story from the typewriter of the San Francisco Chronicle's Bob Stevens and a brief by Ray Haywood of the Oakland Tribune on girl swimmers.

Among our personal favorites were "The Worst Baseball Team Ever" (the New York Mets of 1962) by Jimmy Breslin for Sports Illustrated; "Marvelous Marv" (Throneberry) by Stan Isaacs for Newsday; "Baby Ray" (Ray Felix) by Bill Libby for Sport, and "The Hypnotist" by Red Smith of the New York Herald Tribune.

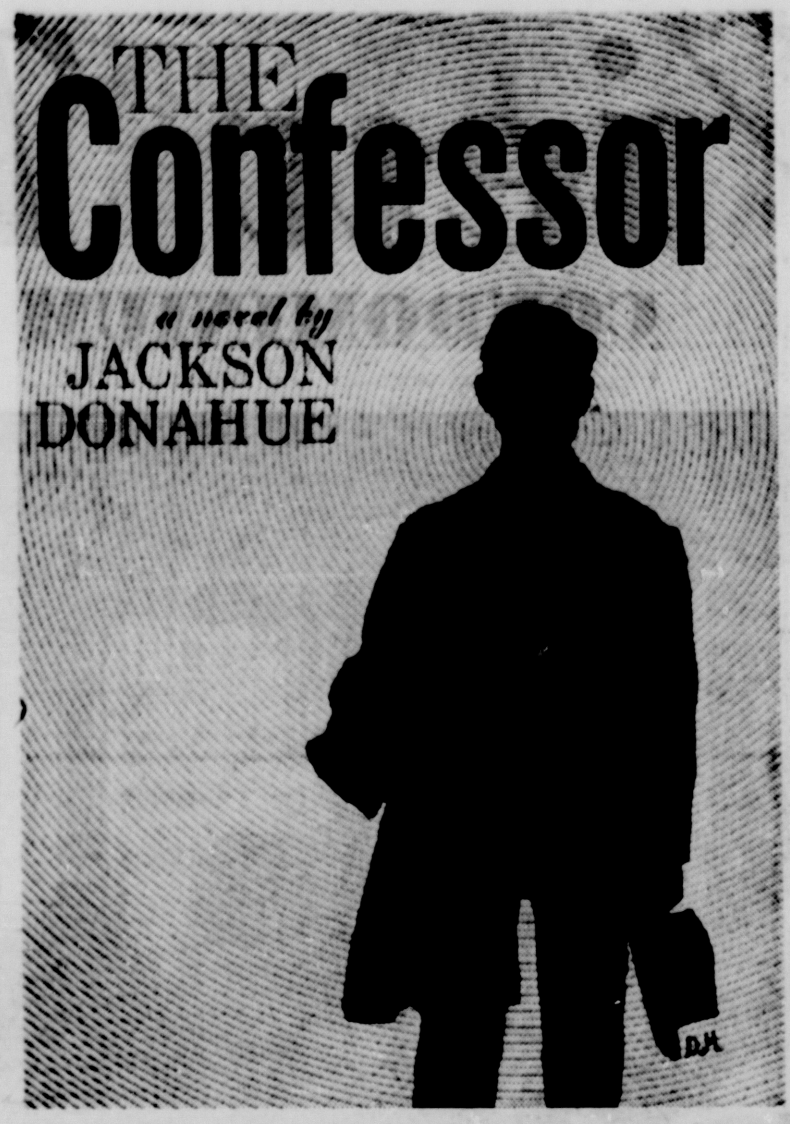
But the one which left the strongest imprint upon us was the short account by Jack Clouser of the Cleveland Press of the closing ceremonies for the U.S. vs. Russia track meet held at Stanford last year. It's as moving a bit of writing as any newsman could hope to produce.

The book also contains the best sports photos of 1962 plus a complete list of sports champions.

It is an excellent buy—in fact a must—for the dedicated sports fan.

NELSON ALGREN'S powerful novel, "A Walk on the Wild Side," has been reprinted by Fawcett World Library as part of its paperback Crest series and sells for 50 cents. It is a shocking and impassioned expose of the brutality and degradation which society inflicts upon its underdogs and dispossessed. And to have seen the motion picture version is in no way the same thing as reading the book.

Still another best-seller now available in paperback (60 cents) is Niven Busch's "The San Franciscans" which has been reprinted by Dell Publishing Co. It, too, is a gusty and virile look at a segment of American society, although a far different segment than that probed by Algren. Thus Busch's story is less robust and more finely drawn than the bawdy "A Walk on the Wild Side." But it is by no means tame.



THE STRANGE PSYCHOSIS which causes men to falsely confess crimes is explored in depth by the new Jackson Donahue novel, "The Confessor," published by the World Publishing Co. The jacket design is shown above.

A "Scandal In Eden"

The Film Colony

SCANDAL IN EDEN by Garet Rogers, Dial Press, 381 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

Glamour, money, sex and the silver screen saturate the era portrayed here — Hollywood as the glittering '20s become the '30s.

The plot concerns a rape trial. The hero, once a powerful criminal lawyer but now on the skids down the bourbon trail, is confronted here with the greatest challenge of his career.

The other characters are members, both large and small, of the film colony. Author Garet Rogers, herself a lawyer and resident of Hollywood, has a fresh, fast-moving style and the ability to portray a vivid cast.

The immense drama of a great trial and the glare and sparkle of the Hollywood that once was have been well captured by Miss Rogers.

In wars of yore servicemen learned the ways of military life the hard way; from drill sergeants, barracks lawyers and "old timers."

All of the misleading information, rumors and scuttlebutt they offered the recruit is missing from Raymond's straight-forward, factual guide to military life.

There isn't too much in the book that an alert recruit couldn't find out sooner or later, but this volume provides it sooner and in one handy package.

One choice bit of advice that Raymond overlooked is . . . "Never volunteer for anything."

Super Bastille?

ESCAPE FROM ALCATRAZ by J. Campbell Bruce, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 248 pages, $5.50. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

This indictment of Alcatraz the place and Alcatraz the idea reads with as much suspense as a mystery thriller.

Newsman Bruce, working with the handicap of uncooperative officials, unfolds in detail the escape plot of Frank Lee Morris and the Anglin brothers. His sources are not disclosed, but the author's careful account leaves little doubt of the facts.

This book also documents the history of the island and traces its failure as a penal institution for hardened criminals. The idea for such a super bastille was old-fashioned even when it was founded at the height of the gangster era in 1933, Bruce says.

Bruce's main thesis is that rehabilitation, not punishment, must be the aim of any prison. Alcatraz was designed as an end-of-the-line institution for hardened criminals, but Bruce shows that many inmates were sent there through capricious and arbitrary rulings of prison officials in other federal prisons.

The expense of the heavy custodial care and the efforts to make the Rock "escape proof" gave early evidence that the experiment was a failure. Justice Department officials, however, stoutly defended the island prison until the Morris-Anglin escape.

The official veil of secrecy drawn over Alcatraz undoubtedly allowed the experiment to continue far longer than it should. As Bruce says, the secrecy "hid nothing mysterious, only incompetence."

Sleuths And Suspense

THE DEAD CAN'T LOVE by Judson Philips, Dodd, Mead and Co., 220 pages, $3.80.

Judson Philips' "The Dead Can't Love" misses being a good suspense story because of a plot with a low believability factor and some rather superficial characterizations Nor is it a true mystery, because very little real deduction is involved.

There are two murders and a confusion in the identities of a former movie star and her double. And the familiar unscrupulous Hollywood mogul who is apparently engineering an evil scheme against the ex-star.

Lawyer Corny Ryan is instrumental in revealing the culprits, but his answers come the easy way—through confession, not deduction.

What all the world should strive for

Think of some that you have known,
Think hard on how they get along

Now tell me . . .
Don't they fight like dogs

And I'm sure that they began
When we all set out to emulate
The brotherhood of man.

STRINGING THE BLUES, Eddie Lang (Guitar) and Joe Venuti (Violin) — C2L (two LPs).

These two unique jazz artists began their careers, always closely tied through their friendship, during the period of the first World War. Both of them introduced new sounds via their respective instruments.

Lang was one of the first guitarists to develop the single-string technique and was later imitated by many others. He is, with Django and Charlie Christian, perhaps the most important jazz guitarist in history. His death in 1933 was a great loss to the world of jazz.

Lang's best friend, violinist Joe Venuti, is still at it with a cheerful and swinging jazz style that never grows old. His madcap antics are hilariously recorded in the illustrated booklet of notes with this album.

Lang and Venuti nearly always worked together and this album is devoted to some of the best of their efforts. It contains altogether 32 tracks, recorded between 1927 and 1933. Among the important names in jazz which appear on the various tracks are Vic Burton, Bing Crosby, Jimmy Dorsey, Tommy Dorsey, Lonnie Johnson, Frankie Trumbauer and Frank Signorelli.

Every tune is a delight, whether you are a hot jazz collector or just interested in good listening.

JACK TEAGARDEN, KING OF THE BLUES TROMBONE —EPIC SN 6044 (three LPs).

Another great jazzman was making his impact on the world and coming out with his first recordings in 1927, and this album, released on Columbia's associated label, Epic, is devoted to his work. The name of Jack Teagarden is known the world over.

His style is so deeply rooted in the blues that many listeners, especially after hearing his remarkable vocals, refuse to believe that he is not Negro.

As with all the albums in this series of jazz re-releases, the booklet of illustrated notes is detailed and fascinating in every way. The minutia concerning the original 78s, their exact date of recording, pressing number, etc., are all there for the jazz collector.

Turning Junk Into Art

An Assemblage Includes Everything From Bottle Caps To Bent Horseshoes

"Sifting through the things left behind by our culture" landed a second prize in the lap of Elroy Munson, Jr., an art teacher at Terra Linda's Vallecito School.

Munson's assemblage entitled "Cornhusker" took a second in the sculpture division of the Marin Society of Artists' Annual Show, which opens Wednesday, the same day as the Marin Art and Garden Fair, at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, and continues through July.

The five-foot-tall work consists of an incredible amount of junk artfully assembled on weathered wood. Included are such disparate things as the head of a deer, complete with antlers, Coke bottle caps, a broken record, torn photos, and bent horseshoes.

THIS CLOSE-UP VIEW gives you some idea of the diversity of discards which Elroy Munson Jr. worked into his prize-winning assemblage—everything from an antlered deer's head to an old alarm clock.

THE VIEWER is shocked at first sight, then gradually becomes fascinated in trying to follow the pattern of Munson's assemblage.

The 28-year-old teacher, a graduate of Nebraska University, has glued, wired and nailed his relics to the board. It is one of his first attempts at assemblage.

"I became fascinated by the work of Seymour Locks at San Francisco State," he says. Munson is studying at State for his Master's Degree. Locks is one of the original creators of assemblages.

"A third dimensional album" is Munson's description of his work.

He also says, "Much of the material in the work seemed to be an imitation of the real thing, such as the portion of plaster fresco which isn't really plaster fresco."

Munson, his wife who is a piano teacher, and their three boys became Terra Linda residents five years ago, lured by his brothers, who were already adopted Marinites.

THE MSA SHOW in the Frances Young Gallery contains 111 other works, ranging from the wildness of Munson to representational watercolor scenes of Marin. The show pieces were selected by jury from over 400 entries.

The title of Munson's contribution?

"It just reminded me of my own cornhusker days in Nebraska."

THIS ASSEMBLAGE consisting of a miscellany of junk pieces artfully glued, wired and nailed to a board won for Vallecito School art instructor Elroy Munson Jr. a second prize in the sculpture division of the Marin Society of Artists' Annual Show which opens to the public Wednesday in the Frances Young Gallery, Marin Art and Garden Center, at Ross. The show will continue through July.

BRIGHT RED FLOWERS, tubular in shape, make the salvia a favorite of hummingbirds. Grow this and other blooms of similar form and you won't be lacking the entertaining little birds.

Follow These Safety Precautions When Using Your Power Mower

Power mowers make the job of cutting the lawn easier, but, like most machines, they can be dangerous, even deadly, if not operated with care.

Most accidents happen to the toes and feet while attempting to start the engine or when mowing on a slope. If you are not careful, it is easy to slip and have the whirling blade roll back over your feet.

A four-cycle engine spinning a 20-inch blade at 3,000 revolutions per minute can pick up a nail or stone and hurl it at a speed of 170 miles per hour. These may hit children or others in the area, and have caused many injuries to the eyes.

To help prevent such accidents, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, offered these tips:

1. Check the lawn before cutting to remove stones, sticks and other debris.

2. Check all bolts, nuts and screws to see that they are tight.

3. Add fuel before starting the engine—never while the engine is running.

4. Keep hands and feet away from mower blades when starting and while mowing.

5. Learn how to stop the engine quickly.

6. Keep children and pets at a safe distance from the mower, preferably inside the house.

7. Stop engine before pushing mower across gravel driveways or walks.

8. Be sure of footing when mowing slopes or when grass is wet.

9. Never plug in an electric mower when it's raining.

10. Never cut grass by pulling mower toward you.

11. Be extra careful on sloping ground.

Gardening Page

12. Disconnect the spark wire before checking or cleaning mower.

13. Never place crank-type starters in a charged position until ready to start.

14. Keep fuel in marked, closed container in a safe place.

15. Always stop the engine when the mower is left unattended.

16. Scan the path in advance of the mower at all times for objects that might be thrown.

Tube-Shaped, Red Flowers Attract The Hummingbirds

Attractive birds which can be lured to your garden by planting the flowers they enjoy most are the humming birds.

These gorgeous creatures have long bills and also long tongues, so are particularly adapted to feeding from tube-shaped flowers.

In addition red seems to be the hummingbirds' favorite color, so that any red, tubular-shaped flower is likely to be visited in search of nectar and small insects.

Thus petunias, hollyhocks, four o'clocks, spider flowers, columbines, foxgloves, flowering tobacco, sweet william and snapdragons are flowers you can grow to attract hummingbirds.

Salvias, penstemons and morning glories are other flowers similarly shaped.

The desirable red color is present in many of these flowers, even if only in certain varieties. Thus Aztec, Fire Dance, Red Cascade and Tango are varieties of petunias with red flowers. A morning glory called Cornell also has red blooms.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Tall bearded iris may be planted now. New varieties are available.
- Ivy geraniums will bloom longer and look better if you trim the plants back now and then as old bloom starts to fade.
- Water potted geraniums, begonias and fuchsias more often than you would if they were planted in the ground.
- Plant Bird of Paradise now for fall and winter bloom. Give them a warm sunny exposure.
- Plant zinnias, scarlet sage, marigolds and other annuals for a mid-summer shot of color in the garden.

INSIST ON IT BEING TOPS

FROM THE spacious living room of this luxurious model apartment on Harbor Hill on the Tiburon Peninsula, the occupants can enjoy an unobstructed view of the water, Tiburon, Belvedere and the San Francisco skyline. The 16-by-24-foot living room opens onto a 325-square-foot private deck.

It's Luxury Living On Harbor Hill

The Tiburon Peninsula is a hotbed of construction activity these days with new apartment dwellings receiving a high priority.

One new project which is attracting widespread attention is the first 36 units on Harbor Hill at Tiburon, designed by architects Goetz, Hansen & Johnson and built by the French Construction Co. with landscaping by Eckbo Dean & Williams.

EVEN AS model units among the 36 completed apartments are being shown to the public, the construction of still more buildings is already under way.

The completed 36 at Harbor Hill are contained in six separate, low-rise buildings situated on a tree-studded hillside. Rental prices range from $175 to $425 a month, and leases are available for as short a period as one year.

One big selling point for the luxury apartments is the sweeping 15-mile marine view which the occupants enjoy.

Each of the six buildings has a different exterior and there is a wide variation of interior floor plans. All 36 units now available have separate entrances.

They vary in size from one-bedroom, one-bath units to three-bedroom, three-bath dwellings. Many contain fireplaces. All have spacious decks.

OTHER FEATURES include:

A swimming pool with cabana area.

Living room ceilings that range from nine to 14 feet high.

All General Electric-equipped kitchens.

Individually-controlled furnaces.

Two inches of foamed concrete in the flooring for soundproofing.

The apartments can be reached by turning left onto Lyford Drive at the Reed School, continuing on to Red Hill circle and following the signs from there to Harbor Hill.

MASTER BEDROOMS of the Harbor Hill apartments also offer magnificent views. All the living areas of the units have outside exposures, while enclosed bathrooms have light wells.

THIS SECOND BEDROOM in a model apartment on Harbor Hill has been furnished as a den. The size of the 36 completed apartments range from one to three bedrooms.

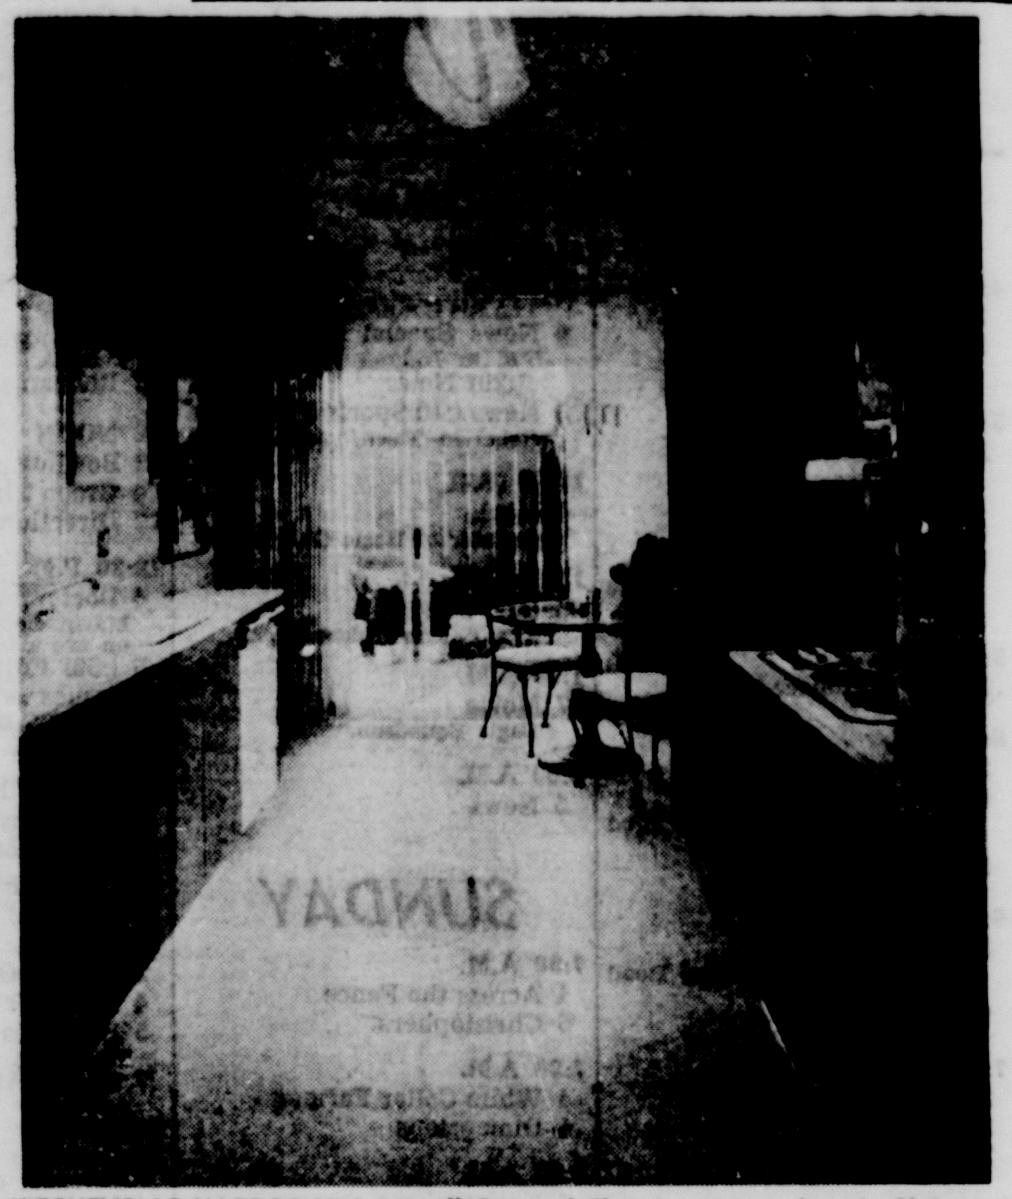
ELEGANT FIREPLACES of travertine marble are featured in many of the marine-view rental apartments at Tiburon's new Harbor Hill development. High ceilings are still another special feature of the luxury units which are housed in six low-rise buildings designed to harmonize with the natural beauty of the oak tree-studded hillside.



KITCHENS AT HARBOR HILL are all General Electric-equipped and offer an abundance of counter and storage space. The housewife, too, can enjoy a view from this cheerful room while she carries out her kitchen duties. And she has plenty of space, well arranged functionally, in which to do her cooking. (Photos by Morley Baer)

FULL AND SEPARATE dining rooms that open onto spacious, private decks are featured in many of the 36 completed apartment units at Harbor Hill. Again from this model apartment, the sweeping view is most impressive. Goetz, Hansen & Johnson are the architects, Eckbo Dean & Williams the landscapers and French Construction Co. the general contractor for the $2,500,000 rental apartment development. More work is under way.

"REALTY VIEWS"

"Do you suppose you could sell an unusual home like mine?" Ray Healner asked, half-seriously. Ray knew when he built his home that it was not styled to the taste of the local market, but patterned after a design popular in another section of our country.

William A. Lewis

"I realize I may have to pay a penalty for pioneering an architectural style," Ray said. "But if I give you an exclusive will you really push it?"

We agreed and started promoting his home. As he predicted local prospects liked it on the inside, but not on the outside. The popularity of the design elsewhere was not a convincing argument.

Then one day a man from New York started a business here. He came in looking for a home. "I'm a little discouraged," he said. "I'd like to find a house like we had before."

"This is your lucky day," I replied with a grin. "We have a home that sounds exactly like your description."

It was "love at first sight"—the businessman bought it that day.

Regardless of the design of your home, we can probably sell it for you. Why not give us a chance to prove it?

AN APPROPRIATE subject for a television show on a patriotic holiday is aviation pioneer and war hero Gen. Jimmy Doolittle. So NBC-TV has scheduled a rebroadcast as a "Purex Special" of its "The World of Jimmy Doolittle" for next Thursday. KRON-TV will carry the documentary covering Doolittle's career from the 1907 flying machine behind him to the Pioneer V deep-probe capsule which is modeled on his desk, at 10 p.m.

RELAXING ON the fairway is comedian Bob Hope, right, in the company of all-time golfing great Sam Snead. After what is for Hope a relatively restful summer, he will be back hard at work in the fall hosting a weekly Friday night TV series on the NBC-TV network
